MUSIC CLUB IN NEW TRIUMPH FRIDAY NIGHT

Alice Gentle Concert Attended by Hundreds Members of Club Here

A BRILLIANT CONCERT

Noted Opera Star Generous Response to Audience Who Demand More

While Miss Gentle has faced many larger audiences, it is doubtful if she ever sang before more appreciative listeners than filled the high school auditorium Friday night. Her responses to applause which recalled her again and again after every group of songs was most generous, her encores including "L'Amour est un Oiseau le Rebelle" by Bizet, the Habanera song from Carmen, a spring song, "The Fields Are White with Driven Snow," "Love's on the High Road" and Robert Louis Stevenson's child poem, "Shadows on the Wall," in a charming musical setting.

Every number was a gem but the two that stood out in high relief and displayed Miss Gentle at her very best were the Carmen number and the so different "Soft Footed Snow" (Lie), an exquisite bit of delicate interpretation to which the audience listened in breathless pleasure and which, at its insistence, she sang again and more beautifully if anything. Her pianissimo was wonderful and to each number she brought dramatic powers of interpretation which charmed as much as the rare quality of her voice. More than one auditor was heard to remark: "I have had the worth of my membership in the Music club in this one concert."

Such a proof of what the organization can bring to the music lovers of Glendale should boost the stock of the club immensely in general esteem and largely increase its enrollment. The public cannot too highly value the enterprise and courage of officers of the club in bringing to our city such talent, and that, too, before Los Angeles has had opportunity to hear Miss Gentle.

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones called the assembly to order about 8:15 and introduced Mr. Behymer as one who had done more than any one else for the uplift of music in California.

Mr. Behymer said he had been brought to Glendale under false pretenses to see a baby club and had found a very well grown infant; that the best of anything worth while is costly because we pay for the years of preparation; that in hearing Miss Gentle, singers were getting a lesson that could not be had for $25 in any studio in the world. "In a city of your population," said he, "it means commercialism, appreciation of artistic values and social endeavor, all under one canopy to enable you to secure the required amount to pay an artist of this calibre. Not only are you dependent upon us but we are dependent upon you, because without such clubs from Eureka to San Diego it would not be possible to persuade an artist to come from the east and give such splendid service to Los Angeles and San Francisco alone. Yours is the 34th city that has a Philharmonic course started with such artists as Miss Gentle."

BOND ELECTION DAY DECEMBER 29TH SAYS KEPPEL

County Supt. Sends Necessary Papers for Calling Election Here

The papers connected with the proposed bond election for a new high school site have been received from the office of County Superintendent Keppel and the election has been set for December 29.

Between now and then an active campaign will be waged to inform voters in regard to the issues involved in this election and also with regard to the two sites between which the board of trustees will make a choice.

Feeling that the responsibility of determining which should be selected is too great, a straw vote will be taken at the bond election and the trustees will be guided by the expression of opinion there recorded.

The site must be such as will well serve the entire union high school district which includes besides Glendale, Eagle Rock, La Crescenta, Montrose, Monte Vista, Sunland and Casa Verdugo, and it would be good business for all voters to visit both sites and see for themselves. The west side site, which is the property of Mr. Gray, is located at Doran and Kensington, the other site at the corner of Broadway and Verdugo road.

ODDIE NAMED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The alien property custodian's office today announced the appointment of Clarence M. Oddie of San Francisco to be custodian for California to succeed Garrett W. McInerney.

Misdeeds of a Few Casting Odium Upon a Great Industry

Efforts to cast odium upon the motion picture industry because of the misdeeds of a few individuals and Benjamin B. Hampton's stand in regard to it from the subject of an editorial comment in this paper tonight. The coming of Lloyd George is treated in another editorial and the action of service men in asking the president for pardon for political prisoners is the basis for another.

These are timely subjects upon which you desire to have the opinion of others. You are not expected to agree with the opinions expressed there but whether you do or not you will find that they are honest opinions and therefore worthy of consideration.

James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" writes of Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France, a man of iron with an arm of steel and a heart of gold and fire.

Dr. Frank Crane says that the problems we sweated blood over when were young we are inclined to smile at when we have passed through enough experiences.

Henry James has his usual comment on the news of the day and Della Stewart says that it seems to be quite the fashion to say "damn." She also says it is quite vulgar to do so. She has a real message tonight.

CHAMBER WILL SEEK FUNDS THROUGH ORGANIZATIONS

Letters Asking Aid for Float Fund Will Be Sent Out at Once

Friday night, J. G. Huntley, L. T. Towley and J. M. Rhoades acting as a committee to raise funds for the decoration of a float to be entered in the Tournament of Roses pageant in Pasadena on New Years Day, met in the quarters of the chamber of commerce to devise ways and means of securing enough money to complete the float. It was decided that a direct appeal by letter be made at once to all civic and patriotic bodies, asking them to contribute to the fund. This appeal will be made in addition to that being made to individuals.

For the past two years Glendale has won first prize for the float entered in the pageant and it is the ambitio nof the chamber of commerce and all residents of Glendale for this city to annex the prize this year, making the third successive win. Mr. Rhoades today said "if the people of Glendale want a float entered in the parade this year they will have to help with the financing of it. The city is unable to contribute more than $750 toward the fund this year and it is up to the citizens of Glendale to donate and send in their donations to the chamber of commerce at once."

Need More Weekly Pay Rolls To Keep Prosperity With Us

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

Most of the prosperity left on top of earth after the war has been swept into one nation. And the biggest pile in the nation has been brushed into one corner. And the highest point in the pile is a shining white spot at the gateway of the San Fernando valley.

And the ticket to this white spot reads GLENDALE!

John H. Gerrie

That's why there's a run on tickets to Glendale. That's why a thousand prosperity seekers come into this valley city every month.

GLENDALE IS THE CENTER OF THE PROSPERITY ZONE!

If you're not in Glendale you're not in the center. If you're outside the zone you might as well be in Kamchatka.

Just now everybody is trying to get into the center.

But how long will the prosperity last? Just so long as home-hungry Americans come rushing in with money in hand to buy and as long as home sites hold out—unless Glendale becomes an industrial and commercial city as well as a home city, in which event prosperity may continue to the end of time.

Incidentally Glendale has just added the last available section of some 200 acres of the old Rancho Providentia and can grow no more in territory except by annexation. The city limits now extend from Laurel avenue to Grand View and from San Fernando road to the mountain base, embracing some thirteen square miles and comprising approximately 12,000 acres, or about the same territory as Pasadena.

It is a clean, wholesome, safe, beautiful home city and Glendalians are eager to keep it such. But if they would maintain the prosperity through the years they must begin soon to make it something more than a home city. They must begin to remove the appellation of Glendale, the "bedroom of Los Angeles."

There's no reason in the world, except the disinclination of its own citizens, why Glendale should not stand squarely on its own feet. There's no reason why it should not cut adrift from Los Angeles as an independent manufacturing and mercantile center.

As a producing and distributing point Los Angeles possesses no advantages that are not shared by Glendale. The fact that the latter enjoys a more even temperature, with greater protection from winds and fogs, gives it some advantage over the larger city. Living conditions here also are more conducive to contented labor than in the more crowded city and that means greater efficiency in workmanship.

The need of attracting industries has been recognized by the local authorities in setting aside an industrial area along the San Fernando road from Eulalia street to the Verdugo wash channel, with an extension to the Burbank city line, in all embracing about 100 acres. This is little enough for a city of 30,000 population to say nothing of a probable 100,000 population within a few years.

But little as is the extent of the reserved area, industry at present is almost as foreign to it as ice palaces to Brand boulevard. No actual campaign has been made to attract factories or mills. In the entire city are only a handful of manufacturing establishments and in the aggregate these employ less than a thousand people.

The underlying cause of the apparent apathy seems to be the prejudice of some older residents against bringing in factory people. They associate industrial workers with

ARBUCKLE JURY HAS STRUCK SNAG IN DELIBERATION

Defendant Spends Anxious Morning Waiting for Jury Report

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—Nineteen hours, ending soon after 11 a. m. today, had failed to bring from the jury any decision in guilt or innocence of Roscoe Arbuckle, famed film comedian, on trial for manslaughter. Arbuckle spent an anxious morning, talking to groups of friends, smoking cigarettes and walking the corridor with a big policeman.

Rrefreshed by a night's sleep at a hotel under the watchful eyes of a squad of bailiffs, the jury deciding the future of Fatty Arbuckle returned to the hall of justice shortly before 10 a. m. today to resume its deliberations. It hesitated a moment on the way to catch a glimpse of Marshal Foch, who arrived in San Francisco early and headed a great parade up Market street.

The only flurry of the morning occurred at 11 a. m., when the bailiff suddenly called the courtroom to order and Judge Harold Lauderback stepped to the bench. But hopes were immediately dashed when the judge called a short calendar of routine cases and adjourned court again. It was understood the judge was then leaving the hall of justice pending call from the jury.

Bambina Maude Delmont, the "avenger" who had sworn to the complaint against Arbuckle, was in a cell on the floor above the courtroom, awaiting removal to Madera, Cal., for trial for alleged bigamy. She had been in jail since yesterday, unable to raise bail.

They all emphasized a belief that should a disagreement result—and many were predicting it—it would amount to a "moral vindication" if not a legal one. They did not welcome the prospect of a second trial, however. No representative of the prosecution was in the courtroom.

BUSY LOS ANGELES VISIT OF MARSHAL

Cause Cancellation of War Hero's Visit to Glendale on Sunday

P. F. Roller of Los Angeles, who has charge of all arrangements for entertaining Marshal Foch during his stay in that city, telephoned to J. M. Rhoades, secretary of the Glendale chamber of commerce, this morning, and cancelled all arrangements for the general's visit to Glendale, scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Roller said that he was sorry to have to cancel the visit to this city but that owing to a lack of sufficient time between the banquet at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles and the time his train is due to leave Pasadena, the general will be unable to stop in Glendale.

After the banquet in Los Angeles the general and his escort will go to Pasadena, skirting Glendale at Los Feliz road and Glendale avenue. It had been arranged to have the general visit Glendale and spend a few minutes on Broadway, where he was to have been introduced to the people of this city by Louis Mesnager, the oldest French veteran of the world war, who is making his home in Glendale.

A few minutes before cancelling the general's visit to Glendale, Secretary Rhoades received a badge to be worn in the parade in this city on Sunday, and a letter appointing hm assistant to the grand marshal of the parade.

The cancellation of the visit will be a great disappointment to the people of this city, as many requests had been made to the chamber of commerce to see if it were not possible for the general to spend a few minutes here.

MARSHAL FOCH IS WELCOMED BAY CITY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—San Francisco today welcomed Marshal Ferdinand Foch. The marshal arrived in Berkeley from the northwest at 8:30. Leaving the train, he took an automobile trip through Berkeley and Oakland and again took a special car, which brought him to the Oakland mole at 9 a. m., where the official reception committee, headed by Mayor James Rolph, greeted him. An immense throng which had gathered about the ferry building in anticipation of his arrival went wild when it caught a glimpse of the little figure in blue—seven stars on his uniform to denote him as the seventh marshal of France—and a cap heavy with gold leaf cocked a little on one side of his head.

SPLIT A SCHOONER

HOLYHEAD, England, Dec. 3.—The steamer Cambria, conveying the Irish delegates, Michael Collins and Gavan Duffy to Dublin for the Sinn Fein cabinet meeting today, collided with a schooner in the Irish sea. The schooner was cut in half. A detailed inspection of the Cambria determined she was slightly damaged and it was decided to return to Holyhead. She arrived here early this morning.

MARSHAL FOCH WILL NOT VISIT HERE SUNDAY

Secretary J. M. Rhoades of the Glendale chamber of commerce received word from Los Angeles today that owing to unforeseen circumstances, Marshal Ferdinand Foch of France who is touring the United States, will not be able to visit Glendale Sunday afternoon as was announced here Friday.

Reasons for the change in the program were not forthcoming, but it is announced that the Marshal will leave the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles at 3:30 Sunday afternoon for the station, to embark on his return trip to the East. He will not be able to keep his engagement at Glendale or at Pasadena, much to his regret it is said.

PUBLIC MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY BY LOCAL ELKS

Fine Program Has Been Arranged in Honor of All "Absent Brothers"

The annual memorial service of the Elks' lodge, which is always deeply impressive, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Glendale theater and the public is invited to participate.

Albert D. Pearce, past exalted ruler, will be the speaker and there will be a fine musical program which will include three organ numbers by Paul Carson, organist of the theater. There will also be a duet, "Come Unto Him All Ye Who Weep" (J. Foure) by E. C. Heintz (tenor) and Edwin Albright, (baritone.)

Two trios, "Protect Us Through the Coming Night," (G. Nicolao) and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," sung by Teenie Sheehan, mezzo dramatic soprano, E. C. Heintz and Edwin Albright also add to the program and a solo, "O Divine Redeemer" (Gounod), by Teenie Sheehan.

RECKLESS DRIVER IS GIVEN $300 FINE

Arrested after driving his car into a ditch Friday afternoon and being held on a charge of reckless driving, L. E. Tally of 454 Hawthorne street appeared before Police Judge F. H. Lowe this morning and was fined $300. Tally was driving his car west on Harvard street Friday afternoon and at the intersection of Harvard and Pacific, he alleges that he turned out to pass another automobile and drove his car into a deep ditch by the side of the road. He failed to state how his car happened to be on the left side of the road and why it was necessary for him to turn to the left to pass a car that was approaching him. When Tally was arrested Friday he was locked in fire house No. 1 and held for investigation. He was later released under $300 cash bail.

WIND STORM IN VALLEY BLOWS DOWN HOUSE

Home of J. F. Delaney Collapsed Soon After 11 o'Clock

FAMILY OUT IN SAFETY

Trees and Signs in Glendale Blown About by Gale

The wind storm that struck San Fernando Valley Friday night was kind to Glendale in that it did no material damage, but it was felt quite severely at Burbank, where a one-story new brick house was blown down. The house was the property of J. F. Delaney at 1057 Roberta street, about one block north of San Fernando road. About 11 o'olock the storm reached its height and it lifted the roof completely off the brick structure and carried it to the field nearby. As soon as this happened the Delaney family rushed out of the house. As they gained the street the walls caved in, bricks falling in every direction.

The house was not quite completed on the inside as it had not yet been plastered, but the exterior was finished. The wind smashed a heavy brass bed and ruined a white iron baby's bed as well as rocking chairs and other furniture. This morning they found clothes in the middle of the field and an insurance policy was found near the Pacific Electric car line, about a block from the house. The remaining furniture is being moved out and the house will again go under construction, the Delaney family remaining with relatives meanwhile.

The only reason given for such a disaster is that there are no trees or buildings to break the wind and it has a clear sweep down from the mountains into the valley.

The only damage done in Glendale was that of a few trees being blown down and some signs along the sidewalks being blown over.

Mr. Davis of the Davis Photo Service narrowly missed serious injury, when upon entering his office, a large limb off a tree in front of his studio was snapped off by the wind and dropped at his feet. Mr. Davis has decided that it does not pay to work overtime, as had he not been returning to complete some work he would have not have been in such a precarious position.

Mrs. E. Holman at 801 North San Fernando road reports that the wind blew the roof from her lunch stand in North Glendale. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reports from Tujunga say that all wires have been blown down and trees are down as a result of the terrific wind.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 3.—A number of trees along curbings here were blown over and telephone and electric service considerably disrupted by falling limbs. Fruit on orange trees was damaged.

Foch--Marshal of France

By James W. Foley

I.

Foch! Foch!
Marshal of France!
Marshal of Liberty!
Legions, advance!
Shrill all your bugles and roll all your drums!
Bare all your heads to this Comrade who comes!
Soul like the tempered steel! Heart of the oak!
Rock of the Marne where the crimson tide broke!
"SAY NOW THE FOE NOT AGAIN SHALL ADVANCE!
FOCH! FOCH!
MARSHAL OF FRANCE!"

II.

Foch! Foch!
Marshal of France!
Hate on the breast of him shattered its lance!
Dip the proud flags to him! Open the way!
Marshal of France, but Our Marshal today!
Let all the drums now unceasingly roll!
On his great country's heart, rent like a scroll,
Read the words graven:
"THEY SHALL NOT ADVANCE!
FOCH! FOCH!
MARSHAL OF FRANCE!"

III.

Foch! Foch!
Marshal of France!
Rise, ye dead Legions, and now shall advance,
Up from the graves of you out of the night,
On with the living ranks, into the light!
Fly, flags, and bugles blow, and, ye drums roll!
Dead and the living, ye are the rent scroll
Where the words graven:
"THEY SHALL NOT ADVANCE!
FOCH! FOCH!
MARSHAL OF FRANCE!"

ANGELUS PARK WILL HAVE BUSINESS BUILDING SOON

Fine Brick Structure Will Be Erected in Popular Sub-Division

Angelus Park is building up a fine business section. Los Feliz boulevard has been an active business center for some years but with the erection of a fine brick structure on Glendale boulevard, it will undoubtedly have to give place as the new boulevard is a logical location for various lines of business.

The new building will consist of three store rooms with frontage of 60 feet on Glendale boulevard with a depth of 80 feet. Miss Pauline Ruprecht, of Gardena avenue, Glendale, is the owner of this new project and when completed will represent an investment of approximately $15,000. It is expected that a prominent chain grocery store will open up one of their branches and will include meat-market, grocery department, light hardware and other needed commodities.

Rigali & Veselich, the selling agents of Angelus Park, report a heavy sale of lots, many of the purchasers being Glendale people who recognize the opportunity of making profit through the purchase of real estate in or near Glendale.

Mr. Martin Johannes, a Glendale resident, recently bought a business lot at Angelus Park on the corner of Seneca avenue and Los Feliz boulevard, which he recently sold at a hundred per cent advance over the price he paid a few months ago. Other deals of a similar nature, which have shown tremendous advances in realty values, have been recorded recently at Angelus Park and it is the concensus of opinion among the many hundred owners of this fine subdivision that present advances are but a marker to what real values will be in the near future.

The curbs and sidewalks on Boyce avenue are now being installed which will mark another new street in this growing section. The unsold lots in this tract are now being disposed of at prices that have been in effect for the past six months which is several hundred dollars lower than the same lots in adjacent territory are held at.

The main office of Rigali & Veselich is 706 Merchants National Bank Bldg., Los Angeles. The tract offices are located on the corner of Seneca avenue and Glendale boulevard and on the corner of Revere avenue and Tropico boulevard, where agents will be found daily who will be pleased to show this tract.

Did you ever see the Goops? They are going to dance Wednesday, December 7, at the annual Tuesday Afternoon Club bazaar, Masonic hall. —Adv.

Anglo-Japanese Alliance Scrapped For All Time

(Copyright 1921 by the United Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Anglo-Japanese alliance is scrapped. The United States, Great Britain, Japan and France enter into an understanding to take the place of alliance. Japan, in view of the above conditions, accepts the "5-5-3" naval limitation plan of the United States.

These momentous steps in world affairs, the most important that have been taken in the present conference on limitation of armament, have been virtually decided on by Hughes for the United States, Balfour for Great Britain and Kato for Japan, it was learned today on highest authority.

This is a virtual decision because these steps have been submitted to the home governments concerned by the delegates here, and only final words of approval from some of the governments is necessary before they are put into definite shape, promulgated to the world and formally adopted.

These great decisions were reached informally in a two-hour conference last evening between the "big three" of the United States, Great Britain and Japan—Hughes, Balfour and Kato.

Thus are to be solved the most important questions before the limitation of armament conference. These steps by the great world statesmen mean that the menace of the Anglo-Japanese alliance to the United States is to be removed; that war between the United States and Japan is to be made nearly impossible, and that the Hughes plan for limitation of naval armament is to be definitely accepted.

The "understanding" between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France is to have two main parts, the United Press is informed, as follows:

1—That these great powers pledge themselves to observe and maintain to the best of their ability the peace of the Pacific and the Far East.

2—To further that end and to lessen the chances of conflict among themselves, these powers agree to the non-fortification of the Pacific isles.

Admiral Baron Kato, chief of the Japanese delegation, last night, immediately after the conference of the "big three," sent an urgent secret cable message to his government in Tokio asking authorization to accept the 60 per cent naval ratio for Japan on the above stated conditions.

"Conditional acceptance" was said to have been given by Kato in the conference of the "big three." Kato is understood to have stressed to Hughes and Balfour the necessity of Japan having a 70 per cent naval ratio from the standpoint of national security without some guarantees such as non-fortification of the Pacific islands and the new Pacific understanding.

The entire plan seems to be up to Tokio and Japan is expected to accept. A reply will be a few days coming from Tokio.

The next plenary session of the conference will be a momentous one. It is then that Secretary Hughes is expected to announce as an accomplished fact the understanding between the four great powers to take place of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

This will be Hughes' second bombshell, the expected one on the great issues of the Pacific and the Far East. However, this will differ from the first bombshell—the drastic proposal for cutting the great navies of the world—in that the foreign delegations concerned will know about it and will have agreed upon it in advance.

Hughes probably will preface his expected speech with the announcement, if this is not made beforehand, that not only Great Britain but also Japan, the doubtful power, has accepted the "5-5-3" capital ship plan of the American program for limitation of naval armament which gives Japan a navy 60 per cent as great as that of the United States and Great Britain—the heart of the Hughes' proposal.

The exact reasons why France is being included in the new understanding are not yet revealed. However, it is pointed out France is one of the great world powers and, with Japan, Great Britain and the United States, is one of the four great powers having vital interests in the Pacific and the Far East.

Members of the French delegation have conferred with the "big three" on the decisions which have been developed and it is understood that France is in entire accord with what is being done.

There are to be no warlike clauses in the new understanding such as exist in the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The part of the understanding regarding non-fortification of the Pacific islands will involve dismantlement to a certain extent of some of the existing fortifications and a pledge by the three great naval powers and France not to fortify further their many Pacific islands, it is understood.

The islands which this plan will be particularly applied to are expected to be the American islands of Guam and the Philippines and some of the Japanese Bonin island bases—these islands stretch down in a line from the southern part of the coast of Japan—and possibly others of the Japanese island bases. There may be some provision for the guarantee of the security of the Philippine islands.

The understanding to be framed regarding fortifications of the Pacific islands is the result of Japan's fears for her national security under the 60 per cent ratio allowed by the Hughes' proposal. Because of her great distance, before Japan could be successfully attacked by sea, the attacking nation would have to have the aid of fully equipped bases for a great fleet nearer to Japan shores, it is believed. So, with the guarantee that there will not be established such bases, Japan, or at least her chief delegate, Baron Kato here, is willing to agree to the Hughes' 60 per cent ratio, instead of continuing her fight for a 70 per cent ratio.

HENRY MICHEL WILL CUT WILSON AVE. FOR HIGHWAY

Commendable Action of Well-Known Contractor and Builder Here

Henry A. Michel, contractor and builder, has purchased two acres of land at the terminus of West Wilson avenue and will cut Wilson avenue through to San Fernando road. For the benefit of the public generally and the people of the west side particularly this is one of the best improvements that has been made for many months. Mr. Michel paid a handsome price for the property but will have several fine lots left after dedicating the street to the city. He will pay all the expense of the new improvement, which indeed is truly a commendable one.

Mr. Michel has been a resident of Glendale for the past twelve years and has followed the building game all this time. He is considered one of the most reliable contractors and builders in this section. At the present time he has under construction fourteen new houses, all of which he expects to sell at prices that will move them rapidly. These fine new homes are located between Wilson avenue and Salem avenue in the best residential part of the city and they should sell as rapidly as completed. The houses are of the stucco type, modern in every way, well built and very attractive. A large garage is provided for each building. The very low price on the houses includes all street and sidewalk work, cesspool, gas, lights and water. The terms are so small that no one can afford to pay rent.

See Mr. Michel at once if you want a good house cheap. He has sold two of these new houses within the last two days and the remainder will go fast. Mr. Michel has also sold three apartment houses and two duplex apartments within the last two weeks. He has many good buildings in Glendale which stand as a monument to his ability as a contractor and builder.

URGE EMPLOYERS FAVOR SERVICE MEN

An appeal to the people of Glendale in behalf of the large numbers of ex-service men who are coming to California from the east is being made by Mrs. Samuel Dick, corresponding secretary of the Lester Meyer chapter, war mothers of Glendale. Mrs. Dick urges that these men be given opportunity to do such work as is available as gardeners, chaffeurs or in other employments where they can be made useful rather than to employ foreigners and aliens who may be seeking work. In other words, Mrs. Dick asks employers to discriminate in favor of these men and give them the first chance. She refers all inquirers to the employment office of the American Legion at 321 South Main street, Los Angeles. Telephone Main 9060.

Need More Weekly Payrolls

the class of south of Europe laborers employed largely in some mill districts in the Eastern states; the mere mention of factories calls up visions of I. W. W.'s, strikes and gangs of hoodlums hanging around the corners.

As an offset to this wholly false conception I want to show what one small, though important industry, already established in the center of the city, is doing for Glendale. Only a few days ago the new $100,000 plant of the Harrower Laboratory was opened to public inspection. The building itself is an ornament to the city and its equipment is perfect in detail. The concern, founded by Dr. Henry R. Harrower, manufactures pluriglandular products for members of the medical profession.

The laboratory gives employment locally to seventy young American men and women of a high order of intelligence and all good citizens. Its extensive business with physicians and surgeons throughout the United States is financed through Glendale banks and it supplies more than half the revenues of the local postoffice. That's all fine for Glendale but there's something more far-reaching.

This single industry does more to spread the name of Glendale over the continent and in foreign countries than all other agencies. Every doctor in the United States, and there are about 150,000 of them, weekly, monthly or quarterly receives a laboratory letter, leaflet, review or other literature bearing conspicuously the Glendale address. During the year more than 5,000,000 pieces of mail go through the local postoffice from the Harrower institution. Two hundred business letters go out daily, 85,000 doctors are on the weekly card list, 100,000 receive monthly reviews and 150,000 quarterly leaflets. Periodically special literature is similarly broadcasted. The monthly postal charges of the laboratory average around $5000.

Just consider for a moment how the name and fame of Glendale would be spread if there were forty similar high class manufacturing concerns, producing and distributing from this point. Not all would be so profuse with literature as Dr. Harrower but in the aggregate it would mean millions of small advertising travelers through the mails annually—to say nothing of the business for the banks, the increase in producing population, the increase in a supporting population and the increase in WEEKLY PAY ROLLS to be expended not in Los Angeles, but right here IN GLENDALE.

And that is what Glendale needs, more than anything else, to retain the splendid prosperity she now enjoys.

WITHDRAWS

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 3. — Withdrawal of the national Non-Partisan League from politics was forecast by leaders here today. In the future, according to plans for reorganization now under consideration, the non-partisans will merely endorse candidates and not place active seekers of office in the field.

DEPUTY ASSESSORS IN GLENDALE FOR SEVERAL WEEKS

Rapid Growth Here Makes Work of Field Men Most Difficult

Deputy assessors from the office of the county tax assessor in Los Angeles have been working in Glendale for several weeks re-checking assessment rolls and making adjustments for taxpayers who feel they have not been assessed correctly. It will require some time to complete the work as outlined by Assessor Hopkins.

In this connection it is well to add that the county assessor has inaugurated a new system as a basis for assessing property, that promises to work wonders in the complex problem of equitable assessments. For many years it has been a puzzle just how to assess this rapidly growing county and do it in a manner equitable and just to all concerned, and previous county assessors have battled with the problem with anything but good results. It seems that it remained for the present assessor to solve the puzzle, and he went about it in this way:

First, he called in more than 100 representative contractors and builders from all over Southern California and had them figure out the cost of every type of building on a cubic foot basis. Then he compiled a table which he uses in making assessments and adjustments, which can be used by anyone in making up the assessment roll. He does not take the figures of the field deputies as final but re-checks them when they reach his office. As lumber, labor, building material, etc., lowers or advances in price he adds or reduces the price per cubic foot, and there is little probability of mistakes occurring in any assessment after it has once been properly made.

Mr. Hopkins uses the five-year percentage depreciation tables and applies the same principle that the insurance companies use to determine the various kinds of risks of men in the many occupations, whose efficiency increases or decreases, as the case may be, with age.

It will require some time to perfect the system, which promises to be the best ever put into use in this county. Assessor Hopkins has delegated Charles B. Anderson, chief improvement valuation deputy, county building department, the laborious task of working out this new system.

SALVATION ARMY CONTINUES DRIVE

On account of a shortage of workers, it has been found necessary to continue the Salvation Army campaign for a few days. The force has not been able to "make the rounds" in a satisfactory manner and the extension of time has been decided upon so that everyone in Glendale may be given a chance to assist in this worthy cause.

Ed Perry, a youngster of Glendale, showed the proper spirit this morning with regard to this campaign. Edward met the director of the campaign outside the door of the Glendale Daily Press office and expressed a desire to assist in the campaign. The little fellow gave all the pennies he had and his smiling face gave evidence that he was more than repaid for his generosity.

Those who wish to contribute to this campaign should mail their donations to "Salvation Army Home Service Headquarters," Glendale, or leave them at the First National Bank or the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank.

GLENDALE MUSIC CO. HAS NOVELTY

Music lends cheer to any home and is especially appreciated at Christmas time. Realizing this fact, Salmacia Bros., of the Glendale Music company, are making special preparations for the Christmas shoppers. There is nothing more appreciated as a Christmas gift than a phonograph, and the Glendale Music company has prepared for the holiday season by increasing their already complete stock.

One of the newest things in phonographs is a combination lamp and phonograph. It is a table lamp with a beautiful shade. The top of the shade lifts up and discloses a complete Ampico phonograph. This instrument is operated by electricity and has the full, sweet tones of the regular cabinet-size machine.

To facilitate the handling of the holiday shoppers, four new salesmen have been added to the staff, increasing the personnel to fourteen, all of them experts in their lines. Meyer Lightner has been promoted to sales manager and is making every effort to increase the efficiency of the sales force. The store will be open every evening until 8 p. m. up to Christmas.

SOMETHING DOING ON USED CAR LOT

During the past few days there has been something doing every minute on the used car lot of the Packer Auto company, 245 South Brand boulevard. The many excellent values that have been offered have attracted many local and out-of-town auto hunters. During the first two days of the sale seven cars were snapped up, while a number of others were spoken for.

So popular has this sale proven that the Packer company has decided to continue it into next week. Present plans are to hold the sale until next Saturday, but if the cars are disposed of as rapidly during the next few days of the sale as they were during the two opening days, the late comers may arrive too late to get one of these real bargains. Every car on the Studebaker lot has been priced low in order that it may be moved quickly. A very small margin of profit has been placed on each car, the idea being to clean up the lot as rapidly as possible.

Good used cars are not to be picked up every day, so those who are in the market for machines of this character should call early at the lot, while there is a large assortment to choose from.

Truths in Epigram

Set a beggar on horseback and he will ride a gallop. — Robert Burton (1576 - 1640).

Men fear death as children fear to go in the dark; and as that natural fear of children is increased with tales, so is the other.—F. Bacon (1561-1626).

Man is a noble animal, splendid in ashes and pompous in the grave.—Sir Thomas Browne (1605-1682).

THE COMING OF LLOYD GEORGE

Much is being said as to the effect of the presence of Lloyd George at the conference. It is to result in the scrapping of England's agreement with Japan; it is to make known to America the economic needs of Europe. There were other guesses in advance.

The truth is that the only certainty is that the English premier will be grossly insulted by the perverted intelligence of Brisbane and the other subordinates working the will of Hearst. This averment is based on the circumstance that the Hearstlings have grossly insulted every man in the conference, American or foreign, and have insulted the conference as an entity.

As Lloyd George virtually is at the head of the British nation, and hatred for this nation is the inspiration of the attacks thus far made, there is no reason to believe that he will be an exception. Even the frequent complimentary notices of Brisbane for George, as the biggest man in Europe, is only that genial writer's style of terming him the biggest scoundrel. If all diplomatists are rogues, the most accomplished diplomatist is the supreme rogue.

The coming of the premier is important. Doubtless, it will help to clarify the situation, bringing out the fullest expression of British sentiment. Probably it will make plain that Great Britain places a higher value on the good opinion and the friendly cooperation of the United States than it does upon the favor of Japan.

CHARLES DICKENS

In many cities and towns there is a Dickens fellowship. Its members are admirers of the novelist. To them the characters created by Dickens have more reality than the figures of history. Dombey and Chuzzlewit pass before the mind's eye clothed in seeming actuality. Pickwick is not a fantasy. Sam Weller lived, and never has died.

Modern readers ignore Dickens, to their own loss. In his own field, a field that scarcely has been invaded, he remains peer. Such writers as Bret Harte and Rudyard Kipling owe much to Dickens. Any student of fiction knows this. Indeed, the younger writers did not hesitate to acknowledge their debt.

Americans accept Dickens, the novelist, and leave Dickens the man out of consideration. Such a course is proper. Dickens was irritable personally; often narrow and prejudiced. His work, so far as it touched upon the society of this country, although it contained a grain of truth, was prejudiced and unjustifiable. The author lived to be ashamed of it. All this is quite apart from his standing as a matchless reporter of human activities.

Modern authors of "best sellers" and such trivialities, go farther than readers do in ignoring Dickens. Some of them boast that they are not familiar with him. They admit, with seeming reluctance, that they have heard of him.

It is interesting to speculate as to who among these later disturbers of the literary peace shall be singled out a generation from now to become the center of a fellowship; to be not only remembered, but admired and praised.

The age that reads Harold Bell Wright and forgets Dickens does not impress by its ability to judge values.

EDUCATION

Speaking to a church brotherhood, the Rev. John Marvin Dean of Pasadena gave some facts of interest everywhere. He was treating the subject of education ,although the title of his address was "A Voice from the East."

He said that this nation was not educating a democracy but an intellectual aristocracy. He desired that every man, whatever his calling, have a full college training. Then he gave these figures, not new, but well worth repeating:

"Out of every dollar the United States raises, six cents runs the government, over 90 cents goes to pay for war, and three cents goes to education."

Not a very proud record; nothing that bespeaks high purpose, but, in truth, rather sordid. It prompts an American to shame.

That a man would be a better blacksmith or carpenter or farmer for having had a college course hardly will be denied. There is happiness in knowledge, in the widened scope it affords the vision, in the awareness it gives of the world even at a distance. It broadens the sympathies as it quickens the mental processes. It furnishes a solid basis for thought. It brings men into closer touch with the universe, prompting them to learn the secrets of nature, and to understand their own relations to humanity and to God.

But more important than college training for everybody is rudimentary training for everybody. The primary school is the beginning of what should be a long and fruitful journey. Illiteracy is a crime. Perhaps in a distant future the way to enter college may be clear to all, but not now. At present, it is access to the common school that should not be denied the child of the humblest citizen.

POLITICAL PRISONERS

Service men have asked the President to release all political prisoners. The petition was presented by four who wore the congressional medal, and other officers of the World's War Veterans.

It needs hardly be said that such a delegation must carry more weight than a thousand fulminations based on hysteria. Doubtless the prospects of political prisoners for pardon have been injured by some of the representations made on their behalf, or the source from which these came.

Exactly what is meant by "political prisoner" may be a little obscure. This country never has had such prisoners in the sense the term implied, for example, in Mexico under Diaz. There a political rival was sent to jail as the easiest manner of getting him out of the way.

Men and women who opposed the war, but who did not commit overt act in showing where their sympathies lay, seem to have been adequately punished by their long detention. Notorious enemies of the country, such as Victor Berger and Rose Pastor Stokes, are free. Others nearly as virulent escaped even the indignity of arrest. These are facts that naturally came into consideration.

But the very fact that a delegation wearing congressional medals asks the freeing of political prisoners will be a powerful influence. The people of this nation desire to give such men whatever favor they ask. Moreover, the seething emotions of war time have been allayed.

MERELY FAIR PLAY

Benjamin B. Hampton puts forth a plea on behalf of the personnel of the film world. He seems entirely moderate and fair in his position. The effort to cast odium upon the men and women engaged in a great industry, because of the misdeeds of a few individuals, has lacked almost completely the element of justification. Those who have been sincere in attack, have also been hasty, because ill-informed.

There are stars of the profession in great number, both men and women, who lead lives as orderly, and on as high a plane of intellectuality and morals as their critics. The public demands that the actor, with whom it feels acquainted, although never seeing him except on the screen, must be clean and decent. In no other way may his popularity be maintained. Let his reputation in this respect be lost, and he no longer is an asset to the producers.

To be specific, the profession is not trying to make a scapegoat of Arbuckle. All the profession asks is that he answer for his own sins. There is a natural resentment in response to the conclusion that because this man has erred grievously, and covered himself with shame, that others appearing on the screen have been contaminated.

Members of the moving picture industry desired that Arbuckle have a fair trial. Such sentiment would have been similarly manifested by members of other professions, had one of their number been accused of base crimes. They were unwilling to accept an advance verdict, but they had no thought of upholding him if his conduct proved to have been of the outragerous character charged.

There have been objectionable pictures. The best known men and women of the screen have not appeared in them. The most highly favored stars decline uniformly to take part in their production. And public sentiment is banishing such pictures.

Betting on the outcome of a criminal trial does not represent a wholesome sporting spirit. Such bets ought to be non-collectable, and the making of them cause imposition of penalty, besides.

Los Angeles has suffered from a long series of incendiary fires, many of them of considerable magnitude. They seem to be the result of activity on the part of an arson ring or a lunatic. Perhaps additional police over there would be useful.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every man that lives along to middle life has learned to ask about most things, "What's the difference?"

Most things, as we discover when we reach adulthood, do not matter. The problems which we sweated blood over when we were young we are inclined to smile at when we have passed through enough experience.

The world is still young. It is still childish minded.

For instance, there is a good deal of hullabaloo over the division of Silesia. France and England came near pulling each other's nose over the question. The matter was referred to the League of Nations. They finally gave their decision, drew a crooked line down through the disputed territory, and gave a part to Germany and a part to Poland.

Nobody is entirely satisfied, but Germany is extremely sore. She appointed a national day of mourning for the loss of her Silesian territory.

As a matter of fact, what difference does it make whether a town belongs to Germany or to Poland in the long run? The people of that town all have to work and earn their living under one country as under another. The whole thing is a matter of sentiment, and of a kind of sentiment that is inclined to be septic.

No one is disposed to complain at loyalty, to disparage the love of country, but often to a philosophic mind it seems a bit absurd.

All the nations are so ticklish of their national honor, are so afraid that some other nation will get a little territory away from them, and are so belligerent in defending their rights, when in actuality the real people of most territories, outside of the politicians and professional flag wavers, care very little who is governing them so long as their rights are respected and their taxes are low.

If Canada were to join the United States tomorrow ninety-nine hundredths of the Canadians would not miss a meal nor care a cent.

If Minnesota should take a notion to join Canada most of the Minnesotans would not mind it in the least, although the rest of the country might make quite an uproar.

The people of the Danish Islands that were recently transferred to the United States never lost a minute's sleep.

As a matter of fact, the important things in the world of the twentieth century are commerce, social life, art, literature, and things of that sort, all of which have nothing in the world to do with flag waving.

AT THE LISTENING POST

"My right is broken.
"My left is wavering.
"I shall attack with my center."

Somewhere, we believe, among the files of dispatches from the front in the late war will be found something like that.

* * *

It may not be exactly in those terms.

But that was the spirit of it.

And it was said at the one time perhaps when the future of the world and of European especially trembled in the balance.

* * *

It was said at the time most critical in the history of the modern world.

When a fighting army thoroughly equipped and flushed with victory was marching on Paris.

And had that army reached Paris the history of the world today might be written by that victorious army and those who sent it forward.

* * *

Had that victorious army reached Paris there would be no conference today regarding disarmament.

There would be no question of scrapping ships.

The world would be full of armed men marching to the clank of the sabre and the clatter of spurs.

* * *

We should in all probability have had a purely military world.

That is, if anything were left of it to provide a military.

For the terms of peace would have been dictated, possibly, in Paris, but not by the allies.

* * *

So just at a time when the future of the world trembled in the balance, it was important that there be stout hearts between civilization and disaster.

It was no time for wringing of hands or bewailing or fearing or crying aloud.

It was a time for courage.

And fighting spirit.

And indomitable will.

* * *

The time to call all the fighting reserves into action is not when victory has already rested upon our flags.

Not when life is at its flood and crest of success or victory.

It its when the battle is at the worst.

When life is at its ebb and when we are struggling in the depths.

* * *

It is difficult for us to look back now with appreciation of the tremendous issues of the days of 1914.

Iit is difficult to visualize again the march of great armies, the hell of artillery, the destruction of cities, the ranks of armed men fighting to the death.

* * *

And it is difficult to appreciate the arm of steel and the heart of courage that could stem that awful tide of bloodshed and fire and flame and death.

It was no time for timidity, for cowardice, for counting costs, for calculating and all that.

* * *

It was a time when all the courage of the lion heart was called for.

It was a time when everything must be cast into the breach.

There was no thinking of the consequences of failure.

There must be no failure.

For failure was too terrible a thing to contemplate.

* * *

And so there was a man of iron with an arm of steel and a heart of gold and fire.

Who held perhaps the destiny of civilization in his spirit and soul.

Had he faltered, the lines would have broken between death and disaster and civilization.

A red tide would have overflowed the world.

* * *

And that man with the heart of a lion did not falter.

He did not count cost.

He did not reckon consequences.

But he said:

"My right is broken.
"My left is wavering.
"I shall attack with my center."

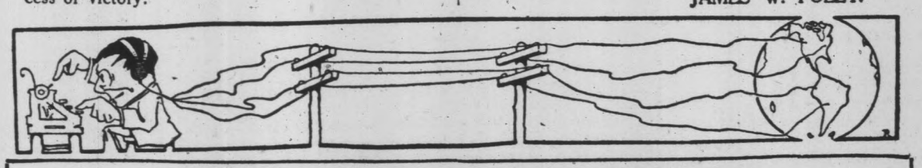
* * *

It is well to remember the type of man we shall soon see and honor.

And what he did at the crisis of the life of the modern world.

Ferdinand Foch, Marshal of France.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

The Pulley—By George Herbert (1593-1633)

When God at first made Man,
Having a glass of blessings standing by—
Let us (said He) pour on him all we can;
Let the world's riches, which dispersed lie,
Contract into a span.

So strength first made a way,
Then beauty flowed, then wisdom, honor, pleasure:
When almost all was out, God made a stay,
Perceiving that, alone of all His treasure,
Rest, in the bottom lay.

For if I should (said He)
Bestow this jewel also on My creature,
He would adore My gifts instead of Me,
And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature:
So both should losers be.

Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining restlessness;
Let him be rich and weary, that at least,
If goodness lead him not, yet weariness
May toss him to My breast.

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes has ruled that when his agents raid the wrong house by mistake, the raided have no cause to complain. This is a rule that will have more than the usual number of exceptions.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THINKS LAW UNENFORCEABLE

[New York World]

"We cannot allow open violation of any specific law," says Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, "without abetting the spirit of anarchy, which eventually will hold all law in contempt and disrepute. Every sign that points to the evasion or disregard of the eighteenth amendment is on the highroad of anarchy and lawlessness." With all this the world can entirely agree.

There is only one escape from the application of this logic—the repeal of the Volstead act and the Mullan-Gage act and the substitution of laws which men will obey. The Volstead act has not been enforced and cannot be enforced. It was Herbert Spencer who pointed out years ago that by association with laws that cannot be enforced the laws that can be enforced lose their authority. Before the civil war there was a fugitive slave law that could not be enforced in the north, and the southern planters predicted that all government would go to ruin the country if the laxity regarding this statute continued. Not only were the slave not caught or returned, but in the end slavery itself was abolished.

When it comes down to a choice between wrecking the country for a law or wrecking a law for the sake of the country, it is the law and not the country that is likely to go.

GIVE THE LEAGUE A CHANCE

[New York Times]

One American accompaniment of the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva has been both noticeable and repulsive. We refer to the manifest hope of certain of our public men and newspapers that the league would fall and break up. Every difficulty that presented itself at Geneva has been seized upon here and exaggerated. It was as if mean-spirited men were eagerly on the watch to see the league dissolve and wreck the bright anticipations which attended its founding. The dispute between Bolivia and Chile was rolled as a sweet morsel under the tongues of the American enemies of the league. When the matter of the clash between Serbia and Albania came up, the glee of these persons was unconcealed. At last the league was going to smash.

It did not do so, and, despite the hampering obstacles which it has had to encounter, ends its sessions distinctly stronger, both in its own organization and in the respect of the world, than when it began them. But what can be said of those Americans who, from detestable partisan motives, have been resentful of the growing prestige of the league and openly hopeful of its downfall? They have shown themselves to be at one with the Evil Spirit. For the sake of a passing party advantage, they are willing to see a noble endeavor brought to naught, and to shut the gate of mercy to mankind.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

It seems to be quite the fashion to say "damn." It rolls off feminine lips with great fluency, especially in our novels. One deduces that writers must number among their woman acquaintances those who are addicted to profanity, even if our own narrower circles do not contain them.

But there's one great trouble with swear words. When one does not need them they are so superfluous—and vulgar. And when one does feel the need of strong speech, they are so inadequate to express what we would. And the vulgarity is the same.

Doesn't it seem a trifle small to lay the weight of our petulance or disappointment on some poor little word and send it as a scapegoat out into the world to rend, perchance, with its horns? And don't we brand ourselves with impatience and lack of self-control when we thus catapult the scape-goat from our inner consciousness?

If one were inclined to idle musings, like the statisticians, one could compute the force wasted in these superfluous "damns." If of the reservoir confining variety, how many millions of gallons would they hold in reserve? How many thousands of farm lands could be irrigated by their crystal contents and, in consequence, how many dollars' worth of foodstuffs saved for humanity? How many times could the earth be encircled by their letters laid end to end? How many kilowatts of force be released toward doing the work of the world, were they transformed into usable strength?

Why be profane? There are so many other more desirable and satisfactory ways of "letting off steam."

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

Governor Stephens flashed a high light into the drab existence of a San Diego cook by praising the quality of wheat cakes turned out by the latter.

It was very kind of the governor to bestow this meed upon a living cook. Far better to have done so than to have neglected the opportunity.

"You make the best wheat cakes that ever swam in syrup" is excellent as a compliment. But "He Made Good Wheat Cakes" would be punk as an epitaph.

"Delicacy" involved in discussing the possible junking of the Anglo-Jap alliance is much emphasized, apparently without reason. It need not be regarded as half so delicate a subject as the junking of a lot of perfectly good naval ships.

That three nations could come into agreement concerning their conduct in a certain area, and then two of the three maintain another agreement covering the same proposition and the same territory, seems rather absurd.

December 4 to 10 has been set apart as a week during which citizens are urged to assist general efforts to reduce illiteracy, and give thought to remedying defects in the educational system of the nation. A presidential proclamation named the period and set forth its purposes.

Doubtless a presidential proclamation is an excellent thing. It has dignity, and carries weight. If it awakens interest in the subject in this instance, it has done good.

There are, however, no apparent reasons for limiting the time devoted to correction of illiteracy. It might with splendid effect be extended to include the other weeks of the year.

A week to lament over conditions, and fifty-one weeks during which the matter will be forgotten, doesn't promise much.

For a number of weeks any oil station was liable to sudden attack by bandits. Several of the holdups often occurred in a single night. Sometimes the booty amounted to hundreds of dollars.

There had to be an end to this, of course. At last all the thieves of the most active band were captured. Not one of them had a dollar.

The last of the gang is now in San Quentin, where there are no oil stations.

And the exploits were not even striking enough to induce yellow journalism to pay for autobiographies of the criminals. Not one of the lot is rated as a hero.

MISS M'COUBREY WEDS STEPHEN BAIRD

Tihs afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Viola McCoubrey, daughter of Mrs. J. O'Neill Farrell, became the bride of Lieut. Stephen Baird at the family home, 1831 South Gardena avenue, Father James S. O'Neill of the Holy Family Catholic church officiated, the ceremony taking place beneath a floral bell in front of the big fireplace in the living room.

A vocal rendition of the Lohengrin wedding march was softly played on the victrola as the pretty bride made her entry, attended by her sister, Miss Mildred McCoubrey. This sensible bride refused to listen to persuasions to wear a white satin wedding gown but chose instead to be married in a navy blue canton crepe, her bridesmaid wearing a gown of lighter blue crepe de chine embroidered in bronze gold beads, a pretty creation which she made herself, being a clever needlewoman. Mrs. Farrell was attired in a gray and rose canton crepe gown.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was the brother of the bride, Albert McCoubrey, and J. O'Neill Farrell, who gave his stepdaughter in marriage. The wedding group also included the younger sisters of the bride, Misses Florence and Vera McCoubrey, who wore navy and black beaded taffeta.

Following the ceremony, which was witnessed by quite a company of army friends of the bridegroom and Glendale friends of the bride and her mother, wedding refreshments were served which included a tall wedding cake beautifully decorated in frosting. After that, Mr. and Mrs. Baird left for a honeymoon in the mountains. On their return they will make their home in an apartment at 1629 South Flower street, Los Angeles, where their many wedding gifts will find an appropriate setting.

Mr. Baird's gift to his bride was a two-passenger roadster for her own personal use. From her mother Mrs. Baird received a handsome fur coat. Mr. Farrell presented the young people with a set of kitchen aluminum numbering 32 pieces. Miss Mildred McCoubrey's gift was a handsome wood and silver tray, nut bowl and nut crackers. Miss Florence McCoubrey gave a charming centerpiece which she had personally embroidered. From Miss Vera McCoubrey a beautiful ivory fan and chain were received. The two brothers, Edgar and Albert McCoubrey, gave checks. Conspicuous on the gift table were a cut glass lemonade set, a china jelly jar and saucer, a silver bread plate, a pretty olive and salad set, hand-painted tea service, pretty vanity case, electric toaster and various pieces of handsome linen. Besides these the bride was the recipient of letters containing checks from relatives and friends in her former home, St. Johns, Newfoundland, not to mention the numerous telegrams of congratulation.

The list of Glendale guests included Mr. and Mrs. George A. Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Zimmer, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Albright, Mrs. and Miss Miller Donley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baly, Mr. and Mrs. H. Loper, Miss Clara Williams, Miss Jean Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ouiment of Montreal, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tuohy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Salmacia, Miss Mary Chapman, Gordon Stewart, Allen Kearns, Mrs. Mildred Vogel, Miss Dorothy Vogel, Mrs. Mary Ruprecht, Miss Ruprecht, Mr. and Mrs. Tune, Mr. and Mrs. Spillsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moffatt, Miss Jean Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. B. Cox, Francis McClintock, Richard Letts, Mr. and Mrs. Casqueneve, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Moes, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Martin, J. UNDERSTANDING IS BETTER FOR WORLD SAYS JORDAN

Disarmament Advocate Is Pleased With Progress of Parley

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 3.—"The report that the Anglo-Japanese alliance is to be scrapped is good news. The sooner that alliance is out of the way, the better for the world," declared Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University and a veteran advocate of world disarmament, in an exclusive interview with the United Press today.

"The replacing of the alliance with an 'understanding' between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, is also a good thing, as an 'understanding' doesn't bind anyone to anything, and is not enforceable if conditions change.

"The move was brought about by a desperate desire of Admiral Kato to save his face, and the prestige of the Satsuma, or naval, group which has been dominating Japan ever since she became a world power. Kato has been working desperately for something like this ever since he arrived in Washington and saw that naval disarmament was inevitable.

"The report that Japan will accept the 5-5-3 naval ratio is, of course, splendid news."

EDUCATORS MEET WITH CONGRESSMEN

Relation Federal Government to Education Topic Today at Urbana

URBANA, Ill., Dec. 3.—Leading instructors and professors in the United States, Congressmen and United States senators were gathered here today in what is probably the first conference of its kind to give their views on the question as to what relation the Federal government should have to education.

Should Federal legislation on education promote domination of State and local authority in educational matters by Federal agents?

This question which is before the distinguished gathering is one which is being given much concern in the country today. A great many of the country's leading educators feel that such legislation is in the wrong direction and the opinion of educators and statesmen is being sought.

President David Kinley, of the University of Illinois, called the conference because of the increasing public discussion on such subjects as a Federal department of education, Federal aid to education and kindred topics.

The conference has brought here presidents of practically all of the universities of the Middle West as well as a large representation of schools and colleges throughout the country. Many state officials also are present.

United States Senator Thomas Sterling, of South Dakota; Congressman Horace M. Towner, of Iowa, and several of the country's leading authorities on educational matters are on the program.

Among the latter are Samuel P. Capen, director of the American Council on education; E. W. Allen, chief of the United States office of experiment stations; Eugene Davenport, dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois; W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State University, and David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois.

Among the topics to be discussed are the following:

"The Early Effects of Congressional Appropriations for Education;" "Review of Recent Federal Legislation on Education;" "Relation of State and Nation in Educational Policy;" "Problems of Administering Federal Appropriations in State Institutions;" "Problems of State Universities in Administering Federal Funds;" "Federal Aid to Education, Its Justification, Degree and Method," "Constitutional and Political Significance of Federal Legislation on Education."

ALEXA STIRLING HAS GONE TO WORK

Champion Woman Golfer For Five Years Now Selling Bonds

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Entering the bond department of S. W. Straus & Co., Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Georgia, who for five years held the woman's national golf championship, is now a New York business woman and has sold her first bond.

"Naturally I am very much encouraged. I hardly expected to get right down to business so soon," she said.

She set to one side a pile of letters and telegrams of congratulation, many of them from some of her friendly golfing enemies, and said it was not her intention to give up the game, "not by any means," but she was not so sure about getting into future national tournaments. "That," she added, "will depend entirely upon how much time the first consideration of business may take." She has not joined any of the local golf clubs, although the privileges of several of them have been extended to her. "I shall get a game whenever it is possible," she said.

"I have not begun to feel settled yet," said Miss Stirling. "I am living in Port Washington with some friends who went to Scotland with me last Summer. I will have my own home in the city before very long."

Asked how she happened to enter business, she said: "I made up my mind a long time ago that, like a great many other women, I should do something individual, and I was very glad when the opportunity to enter this business came my way." She agreed that it is a far cry from the open air freedom of the golf course to the confined seriousness of business, "but," she said, "there are parallels in that in each there is the incentive for high endeavor, and that each calls for a great deal of concentration."

Cooked food! Every variety, reasonable prices, home-made, of course, at the bazaar the T. A. C. ladies will hold at Masonic hall, Wednesday afternoon, December 7.—Adv.

CHICAGO SCIENTIST UPSETS THEORIES

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Though regarded by memebrs of the National Academy of Science as one of the most promising scientists of the country, Dr. J. A. Dempster will be extremely unpopular with beginning students in chemistry.

He had complicated the study by adding a few more difficult names, and by upsetting a long taught theory about the "92 fundamental elements" of the subject. Dr. Dempster is assistant professor of physics at the University of Chicago, and one of the leaders in original research.

A positive ray analysis just completed has brought out that zinc, lithium and magnesium are not elements, but are made up of additional components. Zinc, Dr. Dempster found, has four components, magnesium, three, and lithium, two. For more than 100 years it has been taught that these substances were fundamental elements.

In addition, Dr. Dempster claims evidence shows that all elements derive from some fundamental basic, which is probably hydrogen.

Until further experiments are commercial value which would accrue from the discoveries, highly important at present only in the theoretical field of chemistry.

CHIPS QUARRELS WITH A STRANGER BIRD

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Chips Beaver gasped with surprise. For the bird he'd just met in the Deep Woods, through which he was trying to find his way to the Secret Pond, has just made him the queerest answer when he spoke to it. "The paddletail again! I thought I left you behind. How far have you gone?"

"Aren't you mistaken?' he smiled, his long teeth gleaming in the moonlight as he turned up his face to peer at the impertinent little mite on the branch above him. "Aren't you mistaken? I'm a paddletail, all right enough, but I've never seen you before. And I haven't gone; I've just come."

"Nonsense!" retorted the bird, chattering its angry little beak at him. "You're the very same one I passed in the Trickly Little Stream just before sundown."

"The Trickly Little Stream!" Chips exclaimed. For that's the one which flows out of the Secret Pond. If he could only find it—"Was she by a broken sapling? Looking for some one?" He just knew it was Ripple, after all these long weeks, still keeping watch for him. You know Ripple was the young lady beaver he meant to bring back to his grand new house—so he wouldn't be lonesome.

"Dee-dee-dee!' 'it squawked. (They are so tempery when things go wrong.) "I was sure you were the one. I was just sure of it. Or how could you have known? You can't make a fool out of me."

"Mother Nature did that for me," snarled paddletail under his breath. "So I don't have to try."

"What's that?" Fussy feathers had fluttered itself in to tantrum. "Stop flashing your big tushes at me." (They really were dazzling.) "Try that on the owl and see what happens! I'm not afraid of you!" But the very thought of an owl was scaring it almost to death. It should have been hidden safe in some hole an hour ago. Only it couldn't find one to hide in. Suddenly it broke down and began to chirp in the tearfullest note. "They all laugh at me, they do! They won't ever tell me where I am! How can I ever find my way?"

"Lost, are you?" asked Chips, turning tender-hearted at once. "There are two of us, then. Where do you want to go?"

"To Muskrat's Pond."

That changed everything. "To Muskrat's Pond!" cried the beast who was Dr. Muskrat's friend. "Why, that's right near my own."

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.—Adv.

NEW REALTORS IN FIELD IN GLENDALE

One of the important events of the week in the real estate field in Glendale is the establishment and opening of the real estate firm of Hayward & McCartney at 142 South Brand boulevard.

E. P. Hayward of the new firm has been manager of the Glendale branch of the Edwards & Wildey real estate firm for several years and has established a record for sales ability, having led the seven branch offices in sales records most of the time. Mr. McCartney who has been with the Edwards & Wildey company for a long time has also created a record for real estate sales, being high man on a staff of high men in the real estate game most of the time. Associated with the new firm as salesmen are E. N. Cutting and C. E. Waechter, both of them having vast experience in the real estate business.

Big Drive On—An effective drive for additional members to the local national guard companies is on. For particulars, ask the members. At the drill Thursday night, several recruits were booked, and from appearances the roster will soon be filled.

NOTICE OF AWARD OF CONTRACT

Pursuant to Statute and to Resolution of Award of the Council of the City of Glendale, California, adopted the 1st day of December, 1921, directing this notice, notice is hereby given that the said Council, in open session, on the 1st day of December, 1921, opened, examined and publicly declared all sealed proposals offered for the following improvement, to-wit:

The improvement of Chestnut Street between the easterly line of Granada Street and the easterly line of the Witham Tract as per map recorded in Book 14, Page 91 of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California, as described in Resolution of Intention No. 1249, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work.

The Council of the City of Glendale determines that serial bonds shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the cost of said work or improvement; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January every year after their date until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second day of January and July respectively of each year at the rate of seven per cent per annum on all sums unpaid until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 4. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefited by the proposed work or improvement as described in this Resolution of Intention and to be assessed to pay the cost and expense thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet in each of said lots, pieces or parcels of land, the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district.

SECTION 5. All Maps, Cross-sections, Plans and Profiles referred to in this Resolution are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All specifications referred to in this Resolution are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Maps, Plans, Cross-sections, Profiles and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

SECTION 6. The Glendale Daily Press, a daily newspaper of general circulation published and circulated in said City of Glendale, is hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution of Intention shall be published in the manner and by the persons required by law, and in which the Street Superintendent shall public notice of the passage of this resolution.

SECTION 7. The Superintendent of Streets of said City of Glendale is hereby directed to post notices of the passage of this Resolution in the manner and in the form required by law, and to cause a similar notice to be published by two insertions in said newspaper in the manner required by law.

SECTION 8. The City Clerk of said City of Glendale is hereby directed to post this Resolution of Intention conspicuously for two days on or near the chamber door of the said Council and to cause the same to be published, by two insertions in the manner required by law, in said newspaper, and also to mail to each property owner whose property is to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said improvement, a postal card containing notice of the passage of this Resolution, and calling attention to the fact that said property is to be assessed for said improvements.

Adopted and approved this 1st day of December, 1921.

NOMINATIONS FOR LEGION HEADS IN THE MAKING HERE

McBryde Is Nominated for Commander of Glendale Post

A. H. Jones, Richardson D. White, and Dru Nicoles were appointed at the meeting of the Glendale Post. No. 127 of the American Legion as a nominating committee to place the names of candidates to the various offices of the past for the coming year before the post for the approaching election. Nominations will be open during the entire month.

Nominations made from the floor at the meeting held on Friday night were James F. McBryde, for commander; Chalmers Day for first vice-commander; A. H. Jones, second vice-commander; Joe Wilson, adjutant and Clarence Edwards sergeant at arms.

It was also decided that on Tuesday night Buron Fitts, former state commander of the American Legion would speak at the high school as the American Legion representative in the Educational Week program being conducted by the Glendale schools.

Richardson D. White, superintendent of the Glendale city schools, addressed the post last night in the interest of the Educational wook program.

Plans were made by the Glendale post to bring Christmas cheer to the disabled veterans at Thornycroft. It is planned for the Legion to supply a Christmas tree, presents and music for the veterans on Christmas Day. The dinner will be provided for at the hospital.

SINN FEIN OFFERED IRISH FREE STATE IN EMPIRE

Would Have Legal Dominion Status Is London Times Report

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Sinn Fein has been offered an "Irish free state" wthin the empire, with a legal dominion status effective one year from the date of its acceptance and the provision that Ulster can enter after six months, the London Times declared here today in a supposed outline of the details of the latest offer of Premier Lloyd George.

The plan being considered by the Dail Eirean cabinet in Dublin today specifies that Ulster would retain all her financial rights, it was stated.

Details of proposals as outlined by the Times are:

Ulster shall collect all revenues, remitting any surplus to an all-Irish parliament.

The all-Irish council could not tax raw materials or imports from Great Britain.

There shall be no religious endowments made by the parliament.

No qualfications of the agreement could be changed by action of the parliament after acceptance.

Ireland would have a triple oath of allegiance to the "Irish free state, the empire and the king."

Ireland and Ulster would have territorial armies proportionately.

A boundary commission of three representatives from England, Sinn Fein and Ulster will be appointed.

The south of Ireland shall submit the proposals to a general election before the all-Irish parliament can be established.

Unofficial predictions were made here that if Sinn Fein accepts the proposals Britain will enforce them regardless of Ulster, with attempt to "coerce" her.

FOURTEEN VICTIMS OF TRAGEDY WILL BE BURIED TODAY

RED BLUFF, Calif., Dec. 3.—Red Bluff, in mourning, was making plans for the community funeral this afternoon for the 14 high school victims of the auto bus-train crash here last Wednesday. The funeral will be held in the auditorium of the Red Bluff union high school, whither the fourteen students were bound from their homes in the Dairyville district when the fatal accident occurred.

The fellow students of the victims were to act as pall bearers for the 14 caskets. An impressive ceremony will be held. All business in Red Bluff was to be suspended during the afternoon and the entire town is making plans to attend the services.

The parents and relations of the victims number well over 100. They have been cared for here since the tragedy by the Elks club and the Red Cross.

The victims were to be buried in a community plot in the Red Bluff cemetery.

JUDGE LOWE GIVES BOYS A LECTURE

Police court this morning resembled an old-time district school, when about 20 boys appeared to answer to the charge of riding bicycles on the sidewalks and after dark without the proper lights, as ordered by the state vehicle act. Police had issued several warnings to the boys, and as a last resort, cited many of them to appear in court. Judge F. H. Lowe allowed the boys to go after giving them a severe lecture and warning them that the next time they appeared in court they would be punished.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cheney of San Diego were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Meeker, 1320 East Colorado street, Thanksgiving week.

United States Senator Got His Start Washing Drug Bottles

Lone Republican Senator Recently Elected From New Mexico, Left an Orphan at Tender Age, Worked His Way Up Despite Loss of Parents and Many Hard Knocks in Career

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—An orphaned boy of eleven years bent over a tub filled with bottles in a Denver drug store. There were holes in his shirt, patches in his worn knickerbockers. His shoes were the worse from wear.

But he whistled cheerily as he washed bottles, his hands red from frequent immersion in scalding water and yellow soap. He had a job. Although his parents were dead he was sure of a bite to eat and a place, however hard, to rest his tired little body when night intervened between him and his toil.

Today the boy, grown to manhood, is a member of the United States Senate, after long years of hard work and bitter struggle. His name is Holm O. Bursum.

As the one Republican Senator from New Mexico, Bursum was returned to the senate recently by a majority sufficiently large to be hailed as a Republican victory at the end of a closely-contested campaign in which the policies of the Harding administration were made the issue.

His First Appointment

Bursum's first entry into the senate was when he was appointed by Governor Mechem, of New Mexico, as the successor of Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall on March 11. Strangely enough, Bursum and Fall were political enemies, and Fall opposed Bursum's selection to fill his unexpired term when he entered the President's cabinet.

Bursum's appointment was construed by his friends, however, as a fitting reward for his activity in New Mexico politics for a quarter of a century. His success in the recent special election which returned him to the senate for a full term of six-years was regarded by them as additional proof of his popularity with the people of his State; for, recognized as an unswerving believer in "party regularity" and a consistent supporter of the Harding administration, he was accused by the "progressives" of his own party of being "reactionary" and "old guard."

Bursum is a big, broad-shouldered, deep-chested, powerfully built man. His hands are large gnarled ones, accustomed in youth to manual labor. His face, with its square jaws, is that of the born fighter. But withal he is good-natured — a hail fellow well met."

A Self-Made Man

The senator has been aptly described as an example of the American self-made man who has come up under his own power over rough roads and mounting obstacles.

He was born at Fort Dodge, Iowa, on February 10, 1867. His parents were Norwegian. They settled in Iowa shortly after the Civil War. His father, a school teacher, died when he was but two years old. His mother died when he was eleven years old. It was then that the orphan boy found a job in a Denver drug store. From washing bottles there he turned later to washing dishes and waiting upon tables. In the English Kitchen, once a famous purveyor of food in that city, he found employment. After toiling all day and into the night he snatched an education from his spare moments.

At the age of fourteen he found his way to New Mexico from Denver to work in a store at Carthage, Socorro county, owned by an uncle. He was able to attend a public school at San Antonio when he was not working.

Handled Freight

When he reached manhood Bursum landed a freight-handling contract at the military post of Fort Wingate. He worked four six-mule outfits between the post and the nearest railroad. He later became a railroad construction foreman, and from this occupation he entered the sheep business, in which he has been engaged ever since, and in which he is said to have amassed a fortune.

Bursum married in 1898 and has three daughters, two of whom are students at Leland Stanford university, California, and a son, Holm O. Bursum, Jr., 14 years old.

Since his election as Sheriff of Socorro county, in 1894, Bursum has made rapid strides in New Mexico politics. He was a member in the territorial legislature in 1898, warden of the state prison from 1899 to 1906, and in 1904 was chosen Republican state chairman. In 1911 he became his party's choice for governor. He was defeated by a coalition of Democrats and Republicans.

As a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1908 he secured the adoption of a plank pledging statehood for New Mexico and Arizona, after bitter contest, in which he formed a combination of delegates from all the territories, including Porto Rico and Hawaii. He was again defeated as a candidate for governor in 1916, but kept plunging deeper into New Mexico politics and, despite the factional strife so often rending the Republican ranks in that state, finally became the Republican National committeeman and then a full-fledged Republican senator.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

Will Power vs. Gastronomy

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

The woman who made a point of being argumentative sat down rather heavily.

She had just eaten an enormous supper. Not that she wanted it in the least. And not that she was hungry. Would you believe it, she had not known what it was to be really hungry for, well—not for years.

"But one just must eat to keep up one's strength."

And the woman, whose name was Mrs. Prescott, Jr., a very important personage indeed, ate nuts and raisins aimlessly as she glanced over the evening paper. She just glanced over it, perferring to deal in headlines only, as those who attempted to talk to her knew to their sorrow.

Her family, gathered under the evening lamp, indulged in the usual family patter.

The Mystery of the Pipe

Some one had moved Mr. Prescott's pipe from the rack. He would thank whoever had touched it to leave it alone in future.

The members of the family who smoked—three tall sons—declared their ignorance of the pipe mystery. The pipe was discovered in Mr. Prescott's smoking jacket, where he had left it.

Molly wanted to go to the Athletic Club dance, but she hadn't a rag to wear. Her slippers were danced right through the sole.

"Poor Flora McFlimsy hasn't a thing to wear," chanted Bill, rushing to the big chair nearest the fire, to Molly's intense disgust and disappointment.

And at this trying moment, with a great creaking of whalebone and a tinkling of jet, Mrs. Prescott looked up from the paper and said she had never heard of such a thing.

News Astonishes Mrs. Prescott

"There are women in New York," she said, "who have systematically undertaken to reduce their weight. And one of them lost twenty pounds in two weeks. I don't believe a word of it."

"It sounds reasonable," said the man of the house. "These people are acting under reliable authority. They are studying food values, as I understand it, and eating less than they need, insteading of eating three times as much as they need, as so many people do.

"Exercise, strenuous exercise that stirs the sluggish circulation to renewed activity, tones up the body and fills one with energy. Discovering that instead of eating for pleasure they eat for profit, and regain their waste-paper basket, untouched.

"If the soldiers did it, we should be able to do it. And it may be that there is something in balancing one's food according to one's occupation," own self-respect, as well as the knowledge that they have won out through will power—well—it sounds reasonable."

"But do you mean to tell me that a person can live, normally, keeping up social and home duties, and starve at the same time?" said the woman who simply had to argue.

Mother Makes Concessions

"Now, mother! You know very well that one of the crimes of civilization is overeating. Any one can fast for a day—two days, three days, if they want to—without being any the worse for it. By drinking lots of water they can carry on. I won't say it's a good thing to start reducing that way, but it's a test of will power. And, frequently, a benefit. I know soldiers who fought a week on less food that we sat down to tonight at our average evening meal."

Tom, who had been in the Argonne, spoke hotly.

His mother, eating fudge, from sheer force of habit, looked at a piece of candy, then suddenly put it in the she conceded, thoughtfully.

Just Between Ourselves

By DELLA E. STEWART

Life might be so easy could we only evade responsibility. Is there one of us who did not ever wish that some day or week could be filled to the brim with want-tos, instead of insistent must-bes? That did not think of the happiness that might be ours if only responsibility did not lay her urging hand on our shoulders at every turn of the way with stern prohibitions and peremptory demands?

There are those of us who refuse to recognize anything but personal desires. But refusing to recognize is a dangerous thing. It is as if, driving our machine, we refuse to see the rock in the road, the warning hand of the traffic policeman. Trouble not only to ourselves but to others is sure to result. Two-fold is the danger, as two-fold is the responsibility.

For there is responsibility to ourselves and responsibility to others. The first is imposed upon us by mere existence, the second we accept, though maybe without thought, when we enter into relations with others. In the industrial world, money circles, family kinship—participation brings obligations.

Responsibility to ourselves — for what? That we begin each day in the best bodily condition possible. That we think of ourselves as instruments of some creditable accomplishment and bring our best powers to the work. That we forego the envy and passion and laziness that would hinder us of our best.

Responsibility to others? For good examples, for honest dealing, for unselfish thoughtfulness, for cheery optimism, for all the aid we can give to make life easier.

After all, there's something 'admirable about accepting, isn't there?

STATE WILL SHOW UP MOTIVE MONDAY IN BURCH CASE

Fourth Link in Tragedy Will Be Added by District Attorney

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—With no court session in the Arthur C. Burch murder case slated for today, the prosecution was preparing to present on Monday the fourth and most difficult point in its array of circumstantial evidence.

The point is the motive. The state will attempt to show by John D. Kennedy, and possibly by Mrs. Kennedy, parents of the murdered broker, that Madalynne Obenchain had an uncanny influence over their son and that they had tried vainly to break off his affair with the beautiful divorcee.

Other witnesses will be called to prove that Madalynne had an equally strong influence over Arthur C. Burch—an influence strong enough to make him come to Los Angeles at her request and aid her in accomplishing the death of John Belton Kennedy.

Already the prosecution has built up three of the four walls with which it proposes to hem in Burch from all possible escape It has made out the following case:

1—That Burch came from Chicago at Madalynne's request and that he brought a shotgun with him.

2—That the two alleged conspirators kept an almost daily watch over the offices of Kennedy, the victim.

3—That Burch rented an automobile from a local garage on the night of the murder, and that the speedometer of the machine afterward showed it had been driven the exact distance from Los Angeles to Beverly Glen and return by way of Santa Monica.

HONK! HONK!

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—Henry Ford's D. T. & I. railroad will soon have the fastest freight service in the world. Under Mr. Ford's new system of reducing the weight of cars and locomotives and increasing the pulling power of engines freight may be hauled 200 miles a day.

Lenin Predicts United States Will War Against Japanese

In Interview With Parley Christensen, Soviet Premier Urges America to Send Russia Wheat and in Return Get Furs for Women and Caviar for American Tablets—Says U. S. Capitalistic Nation

Parley P. Christensen, candidate for president on the farmer-labor ticket of the last election, has obtained for the United Press, the most comprehensive and frank interview ever given by Premier Nikolai Lenin, of Russia. Christensen obtained the interview in Moscow, and it was cabled to New York by the United Press correspondent at Riga.

RIGA, Dec. 3.—"Feed our famine victims and your wives will wear furs." This is the message of Premier Lenin of Russia to the American farmers. It was given to me in a two-day interview in which Lenin:

1. Predicted a war between the United States and Japan, and;

2. Admitted his soviet communistic program had "gone right to the bottom."

I went to Moscow October 28, as chairman of the Russian trade relations commission. I studied conditions and visited many factories, warehouses, courts, schools and hospitals.

No particular attention was paid to my presence until Saturday, when I received a message from one of the people's commissaries, which I found to be an invitation from Lenin, saying he wanted to see me.

"Glad to see you, Christensen," said Lenin, as he received me courteously at the Kremlin. He spoke excellent English.

After I had responded to his greeting and also spoken to a number of farmers and workers who were in an ante room, Lenin's first question was:

"What about the war between Japan and America?"

"I do not think a war is likely," I replied.

"There's bound to be a capitalistic war," insisted the premier.

"I have not been in Japan," I said, "but I know that Japan and America are friends. Not only their governments but their people are friendly."

"But," replied Lenin, "you know war is the very best industry of the capitalists and that is the kind of government you have."

"I do not believe a war with Japan is possible," I said. "The world has had enough war."

Lenin's response was emphatic. He said:

"Oh, no, it hasn't. One is bound to come. It's brewing now."

We then turned to the disarmament conference and Lenin said:

"I do not know, but I fear that there will not be much of a result—perhaps some alliance. Don't you think an Anglo-American-Japanese alliance is the most probable?"

"I hope there will be no alliances leading to misunderstandings and troubles," I said.

Lenin questioned me with regard to the feeling between America and Great Britain. It told him it is very friendly, that America is practically at peace with the whole world, that I knew there are many Americans who are anything but friendly, but the people of both countries generally are friendly and their government certainly are.

When I mentioned the Russian famine, Lenin said:

"The work is progressing quite as we expected, but we need more grain. Winter is coming and the situation will be worse. Why don't American farmers send us wheat and receive our raw materials?"

"What have you?" I asked.

"Feed our famine victims and wear furs," replied Lenin quickly.

"We can put furs on your wives. We have inexhaustible supplies of minerals, forests to make pulp for years, bristles, caviar, etc.

"Why don't you do business with us? It's your fault, otherwise, you have all the champaigne you needed."

Lenin said he appreciated my congratulations sent last year to the British labor party on its decision to discontinue making munitions to support the Poles in a war on Russia. He asked me to come in the next day and continue the conversation.

Returning the next day, the premier asked whether I had enjoyed a good meal after our last talk. When I gave him a positive affirmative, Lenin exclaimed:

"God! You're in a good humor. You must send us wheat."

I promised to do my utmost and asked:

"What happened to your program?"

"It's all gone right to the bottom, the soviet program as well as mine," he said.

Lenin then said:

"I want to have a photograph taken of you and myself. It will show Lenin and Christensen talking about sending American wheat to the famine victims, the next capitalistic war between America and Japan, and discussing Christensen's letter to the British labor party."

The premier wrote this title for the photograph on a piece of paper and handed it to me, and then we sat for several photographs together and parted in the most friendly manner.

Lenin put his automobile at my disposal. Two commissaries rode with me to the station. I received an excellent impression of Lenin and returned more enthusiastic than when I went to Russia, absolutely convinced that there are immediate large business possibilities with that country.

FOCH EXTENDS HIS GREETING TO STATE

Great Commander Delighted to Be in California He Declares

HORNBROOK, Cal., Dec. 3.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch today sent the following message to the people of California, through the United Press:

"Please convey to the people of California and of San Francisco the satisfaction it will give me to see their splendid state and city as a guest of the American Legion.

"San Francisco is known throughout the world for its indomintable spirit of progressiveness. It's people are working to help rebuild the world, laid desolate by war, as they worked to rebuild their own city once devastated by fire.

"I send them my cordial greetings."

The message was sent by the marshal from his special train as it entered California.

Come to the Masonic hall Wednesday and get your package from the parcel post booth at the T. A. C. bazaar.—Adv.

MILO WHEAT

If you want something good to eat
Just try a meal of Milo Wheat;
You need not worry, the expense
To you will not exceed 3 cents.
Take notice what I'm telling you—
This includes Milk and Sugar, too;
'Twill satisfy, so you'll not feel
The least bit hungry 'till next meal.

Again, if this food you should use
'Twill help to drive away the blues,
If one good meal you eat each day,
The cause of blues will pass away;
You will not go 'round looking sad
Because your indigestion's bad,
For stomach trouble will all go
When Milo Wheat you learn to know.

MAKING ALBUM FOR LOCAL CHAMBER

The Davis Photo Service is gathering together a group of photos comprising the enterprising element among the business men of Glendale. This album is to be presented to the chamber of commerce and will be on exhibition about January 1, 1922.

F. R. Eldredge, staff photographer of the Glendale Daily Press, is in charge of the photo paper work, and is placing on exhibition some of the newly enlarged photos. A large 11x14 photo of the crowd at Fisher's Variety store is now on display at their office, 127 Maryland street.

Y. M. C. A. GROUPS TO HAVE BIG PLAY DAY

Big things are in prospect for boys in the Y. M. C. A. groups in this and other suburbs of Los Angeles. Next Saturday afternoon, December 10, they are to have a play day on the Puente Union high school field at the modest cost of 25c each.

It is expected that not less than 400 boys will participate and Secretary Rex Kelley says that one hundred will go from here if he can secure the autos to carry them.

The program which opens at 2:30 includes push ball and soccer games, shuttle races and mass games, followed by a wienie roast and then by a big jazz meeting in the high school auditorium when all the popular yells and school songs will be in order. Harry Rimmer will be the speaker, and tickets for the party may be secured at the grammar schools.

FINANCIAL GHOSTS HOVER AT PARLEY SAYS W. J. BRYAN

Imperialism Is Tree of Forbidden Fruit in Garden to World Peace

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
(Copyright, 1921, by the United Press)

The arms conference has given the delegates and foreign newspaper men a chance to become acquainted with the American attitude on international questions.

Our visitors see a nation that believes world peace as not only possible, but very desirable. They observe no evidence of an armed force. While they will see more men in uniform in Washington than any where else, they are not numerous even in the nation's capital and their manners do not impress the observer with the idea that they play a prominent part in the nation. Outside of Washington, the visitors scarcely see a soldier and they hear very little of the things that pertain to war. They are returning home with a vision of what is possible when the government is in the hands of the masses and receives its inspirations from those who produce the wealth of the richest nation in the world.

The people of the United States are also learning something, and what they learn will tend to increase their opposition to anything imperialistic. They see that all the questions that give any trouble at the conference grow out of imperialism. It is only where the doctrine of self determination, so insistently recommended by ex-President Wilson, is ignored that trouble arises.

Although the conference has been in session less than a month, outlying possessions and outlying commercial interests have already twice clouded the skies. Great Britain and France, who were mutually dependent upon each other in the recent war, have found themselves at outs—not a serious altercation but enough to indicate graver possibilities.

Then there was a flareup between France and Italy—not fatal to friendship, but irritating. The acute questions of the Orient grow out of spheres of influence forced upon weaker nations and the occupancy of territory which must be held, if at all, by force.

America finds that there is one tree in the garden, the fruit of which is forbidden, if the nation would avoid international complication, and that tree is imperialism.

Because our people are increasingly impressed with the dangers that follow in the wake of imperialism, they are increasingly opposed to any sort of alliance that will make us share in an armed way, in the controversies that continually arise because of conflicting financial interests. The association of nations proposed by President Harding wil contain no provision that will involve us in other people's quarrels, unless our congress, acting with entire freedom, shall consider it a proper cause for declaration of war.

NEXT SEASON WILL SEE SAME OLD RULES

Changes in Pitching Will Not Be Changed Says John A. Heydler

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Changes in the pitching rules or discussion of the "lively ball" will not receive the slightest consideration at the winter baseball meetings, in the opinion of John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

All last season, when the blame for the extremely heavy hitting was placed upon a lively ball and rules that crippled the pitchers, the National League chief maintained that it was the same old ball and that the rules were not too drastic.

"I believe I was vindicated in the world's series. The same ball was used and good pitchers found no trouble in stopping heavy hitting. It was inferior pitching that increased the hitting more than anything else last season," Heydler said.

Restoration of the use of resin or any other substance to help the pitcher get a grip on the ball will not be authorized, according to the National League chief, who says that his league has solved the problem of the slippery new ball by allowing the umpires to take the gloss off the hide by rubbing it with a white clay that does not discolor the pellet.

"We have been giving it the test and we have found that it solves the problem," he said.

Heydler expects the coming meeting to be one of the quietest in the rather turbulent history of the major leagues, because there is nothing to squabble over but the barnstorming Ruth, and the magnates are only passively interested in the case, as Commissioner Landis has it in his hands.

Although it will not be called officially to the magnates' attention, Heydler is going to ask the National League to draw the lines a little closer on hits and not be so ready to let fielders out of an error on a questionable hit. The National League boss said the scoring during the world's series was most surprising at times.

CLOVER SADDENED BY NEWS OF DEATH

L. P. Clover of 947 South Louise street, who came to Glendale in July, 1920, has been saddened by the news of the death of an old friend who was the oldest inhabitant of the city from whence he came, Mrs. Mary Ann Potter. She died in Dwight, Ill., in November at the ripe age of 107 years. Until after her 100th birthday she kept her faculties unimpaired and was keenly interested in the affairs of the world. Her grandfather fought under Washington in the Revolutionary war and her father was a soldier in the war of 1812. Three great grandsons were in service with the A. E. F. during the World war. Mrs. Potter and her husband settled in Will county, Illinois, in 1844 and grew up with the country, and most interesting were the Indian stories she was able to tell her great grandchildren based on her personal experiences.

Miss Minnie Patterson of Los Angeles was a recent guest in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hull, 328 West Colorado.

GERMAN WRITERS' VIEWS ON PARLEY IN WASHINGTON

General Cancellation of Allied Debts to United States Are Hit Upon

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Here, in broad outline, is an exposition of the views held by an influential group of German political writers on some of the issues at stake at the Washington Conference. The subjoined article is from the Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten:

"The Washington Conference is imminent, and never before in history has the British Empire been less prepared for fateful decisions than it is today. America wants a plain answer as to whether England intends to sit at the conference table side by side with her Japanese ally or whether, for the sake of her American friendship, she will deliver Japan as a victim to American plans. England will find it so much harder to make a decision because the internal unity of the Empire and the future position of the mother country in its relation to the Dominions depend chiefly upon that decision. As a power in Asia, England cannot afford to make Japan her enemy without surrendering herself. But if there remains, even beneath the surface, the slightly distrust between England and America the ties between England and her Dominions will automatically be loosened, and all hope for a naval agreement and for relief from the present economic pressure will be lost.

Debt Cancellation

"Much to the displeasure of the United States, British statesmen are agitating a general cancellation of debts as the only remedy for the well nigh intolerable economic conditions existing in the world today. America has let it be clearly understood that she would consider such a proposition only at the price of an absolute, thoroughgoing political understanding with England.

"France has always been in a much better position, for she wants nothing of America except American sanction of the French European policy and, if necessary, America's support in carrying out that policy. France's strength as a military power on land is welcome to America as a means to bring pressure to bear upon England. During the last few weeks France has gained considerable ground in the United States through clever propaganda among the people and in American Government circles. Certainly it is not for nothing that Briand resolved to take personal command of the French cause at Washington, nor is it in vain that the most famed of France's military leaders are wooing the American public in behalf of the French viewpoint.

England and France

"In these circumstances, it is to comprehend that England, on the eve of the Washington Conference, tried to draw France closer to her rather than repel her. Once again Germany—that is, German Upper Silesia—has been the common ground over which Britain and France shook hands. In making himself the executive of Clemenceau's will, Briand has gained the greatest victory that could have been won against the British partner since Versailles.

"But even today probably no one in England doubts that this 'triumph' was a Pyrrhus victory, disastrous both to the victor and the vanquished—and the comedy of Versailles will have for its finale a catastrophe that will not even leave the world's overlords at Washington unshaken."

FATHERS AND SONS HEAR 'BOB' SHULER

Last night at a "father and son" banquet, at which "Fighting Bob" Shuler was an after-dinner speaker, was effected at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church the organization of a brotherhood, which will meet monthly in the banquet hall of the church, of which Rev. Harley Preston is pastor.

A nominating committee composed of John Camphouse, George Moore and Harold Adams recommended candidates for office, who were unanimously elected as follows: President, Mr. Martin; vice-president, Mr. Heminway; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Meyers. A committee on constitution and by-laws, of which Mr. Fambrough is chairman, was appointed and will draft a constitution to be submitted at the next regular meeting of the brotherhood.

Ladies of the church had decorated the table with roses and other flowers, providing an attractive setting for the banquet, which proved a pleasant affair. Mr. Shuler's 20-minute talk was enjoyed, and it was a good preparation for the longer address which he gave in the church auditorium to a larger company. His talk there on "The Heroic in Our Religion," included many personal experiences of his boyhood and brought in the struggles of his father in pioneer days to obtain an education. It was calculated to inspire higher ideals and was followed with close attention and interest.

CHIEF MARTIN NOW HOME OWNER HERE

Chief of Police Allen O. Martin has moved his family into their new home at 640 West Lexington drive. Mrs. Martin, who has been living in Pasadena until the new home was completed, says she feels that she is really at home now. For the past month, though living in Pasadena, Mrs. Martin has been making daily trips to Glendale and has purchased all of her groceries and clothing here.

Postponed—The Foster Bridge club, which was to have met with Mrs. C. E. Norton on North Maryland Friday afternoon, was postponed until January on account of the illness of some of the members.

AMERICAN SCULPTORS IN PARIS COMPLETE STATUE OF PERSHING FOR WEST POINT

Left to right: Herbert Hazeltine and Jo Davidson, American sculptors, in Mr. Hazeltine's studio in Paris, with a model of a bronze statuette of General Pershing, which will be presented to West Point as a gift of admirers of the commander-in-chief of the A. E. F. Both sculptors worked on the statuette, which shows Pershing erect on a spirited charger marching forward. Mr. Hazeltine originally intended to have the horse in a rearing position, but later changed its attitude out of respect for Pershing's motto: "Ever Forward." General Pershing, during his recent visit to Paris, visited Mr. Hazeltine's studio to view the work of the artists. He was immensely pleased with it.

Value of American Education Week

By MRS. JOHN ROBERT WHITE
President of Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations

Beginning Sunday, December fourth and continuing through the week, Glendale will join in the nation-wide celebration of Education Week.

When merchants have wares to place on the market, when they have something new to show, when they feel that some support is needed for which they must show the need, they have an exposition.

Agricultural people have their annual fairs, musicians their contests, in fact every line of activity has a time of concentrating and of giving publicity to their work.

It is very fitting that we should have a week given over to bringing before the public, the educational work of our country.

We all know the value of education, but we do not all realize the work connected with the process of educating.

This coming Education Week will be of great value to us, our children and to our teaching profession. We will have our attention centered upon the various needs, the accomplishments and the high hopes of our educators. Dr. Charles Ormand Williams, president of the National Education Association says that "no service has suffered more from unintelligent criticism than the schools." We all know that the needs of the children are different now than they were a generation ago. We also know that the average citizen very often compares the schools as they were in his day.

This week of Education Week will bring to us the wonderful part that education takes in the upbuilding of our nation. The schoolroom has been called the "Cradle of the Nation' so let us cooperate with the National Education Association and the American Commission of the American Legion, helping them to promote education and Americanism.

Education Week Constructive

By MRS. C. E. HUTCHINSON
President Tuesday Afternoon Club

It is altogether fitting that we should set aside a week to call attention to our educational institutions and their value to the nation.

We sometimes fail to appreciate our advantages, and rather underestimate their value; few people know anything of the courses our schools provide or energy expended in directing them, fewer ever visit the schools or show any interest.

The world awaits trained leaders; the children of today will be the men and women of tomorrow, and we must look to our educators to train and guide the immature mind in its development.

In the year 1920 the United States spent one billion dollars in all forms of education. This seems like a large sum of money and we have visions of universities, colleges and high schools splendidly equipped. But when we think of the vast sum spent in destructive forces, our educational fund sinks into insignificance. The first, vital, constructive, pulsating in life and activity. The other devitalizing and deathly. The first arousing the youth of our land for action, the other seeking to destroy.

So we hail education week, and with an optimistic vision look forward to the time when every week shall be education week.

Diet in Epilepsy

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

It has long been recognized by physicians that in treating cases of epilepsy it often is of the greatest helpfulness to modify the patient's diet so as to eliminate from it as far as possible the use of salt. Also it has been recognized that epileptics may be greatly benefited by restricting rigorously their use of meat

More recently evidence has been found to indicate that in certain cases the important thing required may not be elimination of salt and meat from the diet so much as elimination of some particular food which, for an unknown reason, has a poisonous on irritating effect on the patient's nervous system.

That is to say, just as there are people who cannot eat shell fish, strawberries, or some other special article of food without suffering from attacks of eczema or asthma, so it would seem there are people whose epileptic attacks are similarly caused.

The attacks in such cases are truly symptomatic of food poisoning. As is shown by the fact that if the sufferers are deprived of the food which their symptoms seem unable to tolerate, a marked improvement, if not a definite cure, of their epilepsy will follow.

Certainly this was the result in one recently reported case— that of a man whose convulsive attacks resisted medicinal and hygienic treatment until he chanced to notice that their occurrence was closely coincidental with his eating eggs, of which he was so fond that he often ate many at a time.

Eliminating eggs from his diet, he at once began to improve. The improvement continued until one day, in a moment of recklessness, he ate freely of his favorite food. The penalty for this imprudence was a severe convulsion.

No longer questioning the direct relation of cause and effect between his egg-eating and his epilepsy, he now became a lasting abstainer from eggs. Once more an improvement of health set in and persisted.

Now, it fortunately happens that medical men possess certain simple tests whereby they can determine whether patients react badly to this or that article of food. The tests also indicate pretty positively the degree of reaction. It assuredly would seem reasonable to apply them to all epileptics whose condition remains unmodified by the treatment ordinarily given.

And even if food poisoning be only a rare cause of epilepsy, the detection of the few cases in which it is the veritable cause would well repay the slight expenditure of money and time required for application of the food tests. For that matter, investigation may show that epilepsy is more frequently than one would suspect a symptom of inability to tolerate one special food or special class of foods.

Epilepsy remains, remember, one of the great mysteries of medicine. This because as physicians are becoming more and more aware, it is never a disease in itself, but merely a sign of some underlying condition of disease.

MONTE VISTA HOME GETS A FURNACE

The Monte Viste home for undernourished children has been closed for about two weeks while a furnace was being put in. There were open fireplaces but as they might prove dangerous for the little children, a furnace has been installed. The children were provided with temporary homes in Glendale and vicinity. The home is in charge of the council of community service and several towns around Los Angeles furnished the home, Glendale furnishing the kitchen.

CALIFORNIA HAS FINE HIGHWAYS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Secrest of Detroit, Mich., have arrived at the home of Mr. Secrest's mother, Mrs. Mary Secrest, 540 Myrtle street after a 23-day trip overland from their home in Detroit. The couple made the trip over the National old trail from Indianapolis, Ind., into Glendale, camping out every night along the road. According to Mr. Secrest the roads in Illinois are better than in any other state with the exception of California. Mr. Secrest who is an automobile mechanic, expects to locate in Glendale.

THE CUT DIRECT

By JOHN BRECK.

The lure of the mountains—you need not be born a "hill-billy" to know it. Perhaps one who is used to being hemmed in by city streets feels it the more keenly by sheer comparison. Or the woodsman, who walks with his eyes alert for tiny signs, near at hand. From a hill-top the very immensity of your view gives you the illusion that you are a superior being, with a mind groping for vast horizons.

Such as? Well, I was marking the contrast between mountains which have been gouged by the hard-edged tools of ice and those cut only by the rain. The first are tall, steep-craiged, with dimpled meadows or blue cups of lakes between their angled knees where some glacial plow smoothed out its furrow. The second are round-topped, sleek where they strike your eye; their jagged parts are riven valleys. Either one might be the mould the other was cast in and then reversed.

But the patterns on their sides are all the same. The south slope is dry and short-clipped. Grasses of yellow and tan are often ribbed into corduroy by the paths of grazing cattle ,round and round a neck-length apart. Some times a bias scene marks their beaten track to the nearest brook. When the sun strikes an eastern slope, in the cool of morning, brush weaves an Oriental-looking rug or deeper pile in green and gold and autumn red, but the western sun burns it brown—the brown which is purple just a quail-flight away. Only the cool north faces are ever verdant—they and the deep-sheltered waterways.

Delightful, but unimportant? Not when you discover them for the very first time. Not when you mark the eager lean of trees marching bravely up a steep to discover the hidden stars. Or the blush of green where the vagrant sea-wind leaves his foggy kiss on the cheeks of a winding valley. Very important, indeed, are these things when you begin to feel a part of them.

Just below me a log-jam lay like a clumsy darn over the rent of a creek bed. Out of it straddled old Bre'er Coon, yawning, and scratching as if he'd been asleep on creases in his clothes. Wider awake, he began to comb sticky tar-weed out of his breeches with clever black hands. I could smell it as I came sociably nearer.

A tinkling pebble made him look up. He stared, wet his lips, plainly intending to order me off for trespass, then, as if no self-respecting beast would even speak to one who bore the stigma of man's hated form, he decamped. There was I, alien, alone, humbly conscious that my late majesty was but a loan from the mountains.

Fashions for Americans

A group of accessories includes a dainty little vestee and cuff set made of white broadcloth or fine velour, finished all about the edges with self cording and trimmed with a bit of line embroidery. Then there are a girdle made of black velvet ribbons, finished with tassels, and a sleevelet of dotted net trimmed with lace edging and insertion. The little lace ruffle extending from wrist to elbow is a pretty feature. Whether full length or short, these sleevelets are finished at the upper edge with snug elastic bands, so that they stay in place without being pinned to the garment they are to form a part of and finish. So many of the flared sleeves are featured in frocks and suits that the separate sleevelet is quite as important as the vestee or collar and cuff set this season, and many dainty things are offered by accessory designers.

Among the new inexpensive jewelry novelties may be noted an array of floral effects in the form of brooches, bracelets, lavallieres, hairpins, and combs, etc. The flowers are so dainty in form as to resemble ribbon flowers, and exquisite colorings are featured.

The newest bead girdles seen are also interesting. Shown in various widths and colorings, plain net forms the foundation for these new girdles, the surface of the net being covered with tiny beads set on in many novel designs. Sometimes the ends are finished with deep fringe of beads in single or double strands, or a row of bead tassels may give the finishing touch. The advantage of one of these net and bead girdles is that it may be draped so gracefully about the waist. Bulkiness is absent.

Each week seems to see new and interesting things added to the accessories displays, emphasizing the importance of minor items of dress.

WOMAN INJURED IN COLLISION TODAY

Mrs. E. L. Baldwin was painfully injured this morning in a collision of an automobile driven by her husband and a truck said to be the property of Philip Rosenberger of Los Angeles, at Harvard and Central. According to a report to the police by E. L. Baldwin, the truck was traveling north on Central. At the intersection of Harvard and Central, without giving any signal cut the corner and turned west on Harvard. The machine driven by Baldwin was traveling about 15 miles an hour and could not sto in time to prevent the collision. Mrs. Baldwin was taken to the Glendale sanitarium and hospital where her injuries were treated.

BUSINESS WOMEN IN SESSION CHANGE CONSTITUTION

New Organization Doing Great Work for Good of Citizens in General

The executive committee of the Business and Professional Women's club met Thursday evening in the office of Dr. Laura Brown, where an amendment to the constitution, submitted by Dr. Caroline P. Jackman, was adopted for submission at the next session of the club, December 13. It provides for the ending of the club year on May 31 instead of June 30, and for the reduction of dues to members who enter the second half of the year.

The proposed establishment of a rest room for the use of members at noon or other periods of leisure, was discussed informally and Dr. Jackman and Mrs. Beck were named as a committee to cooperate with Miss Nellie Warner in the investigation of possible locations.

Dr. Laura Brown, as chairman of the hospitality committee, reported the social meeting held the week previous and announced plans for dividing her committee into groups, upon which she would call for the different months of the club year. Her plans included a banquet for January, a social evening for February, another the last of March and still another the 25th of April. She suggested that the club year end with a banquet, at which the newly elected officers would be installed.

Mrs. Kara Root reported several destitute families wherein the children will have no Christmas unless it is provided by outsiders, and on motion of Miss Margaret Cross, the committee voted to give a basket of clothing, toys, etc., to meet the needs outlined by Mrs. Root. Mrs. Root's address is 110 Olive street and the donations can be sent, if more convenient, to the office of Dr. Laura Brown above the First National bank.

The committee also approved a suggestion to have a talk on the laws of California affecting women and children, at the meeting of December 13, which will probably be held in the new quarters of the chamber of commerce.

Mrs. Margaret Biggs, president, conducted the meeting.

S. O. S. CALL GIVEN BY HIGH SCHOOL

An S. O. S. call is going out from the high school. It has been discovered that not nearly enough automobiles have been offered to convey the big student body in the proposed school parade next Monday afternoon. Owners of autos who are willing to give the use of their machines to carry students in the parade are requested to report at the school between 12:30 noon and 1 p. m. prepared for service. It is believed there are many who will respond when they realize the need.

Toronto clothing workers will receive the same pay as heretofore under the provisions of a new agreement signed between the Clothing Manufacturers' Association and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union.

NINETEEN YEAR OLD GIRL PRESENTED STRANGE CASE

Bernice Redick Has Two Personalities Claims of Physicians in Case

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—Bernice Redick will soon have sole possession of her own body again, Dr. H. M. Goddard, psychologist, declared today, announcing existence of a strange case of dual personality. Bernice Redick, 19 years old, and Polly Redick, 4 years old—total strangers until a few weeks ago—have been occupying the same human body, but science is slowly killing Polly in an effort to save the life of Bernice.

Hypnotism is working the cure in the peculiar scientific case.

The girl, formerly a high school pupil at Lisbon, Ohio, was brought to the juvenile research bureau two months ago for treatment.

"She was possessed of two distinct personalities," Dr. Goddard said. "In a single day she changed back and forth eleven times from a four year old girl to her normal self, a 19-year-old girl.

"The four year old personality said its name was Polly. It was normal in every way for a four-year-old child. It could neither read nor write, nor distinguish between colors. The child gibbered in 'baby talk' and delighted in toys.

"When Bernice got the upper hand we would have a bright, alert, cultured yound woman who wrote beautiful letters, read good books, and had ambitions to become a musician."

Dr. Goddard found that when under a hypnotic spell the real self possessed the girl's body. In this manner he first introduced the two personages and upbraided the girl for lapsing into infancy.

"After each hynotic treatment we could see she was coming to have a better understanding of her other personality and with it a determination not to let the Polly personality possess her. Now we feel that Polly will soon be eradicated entirely."

ROBERTS & ECHOLS READY FOR SHOPPER

Roberts & Echols, corner Brand and Broadway, like many other merchants in Glendale, are getting ready for the Christmas holidays by adding to their stock. They carry a very good line of kodaks, candies, stationery, perfumes, toilet water, Waterman's fountain pens, Eversharp pencils, and many other acceptable gifts. Another one of their specials at this season is the California figs, which are very nice to send to the friends and relatives in the East. They also will have a big line of Christmas tags, seals and ribbons for tying packages.

Rehabilitation clinics for persons injured in the course of their employment will be started in Trenton along the lines of those in Newark and Jersey City. It is announced that the Newark clinic has treated 12,000 in the last year and a half.

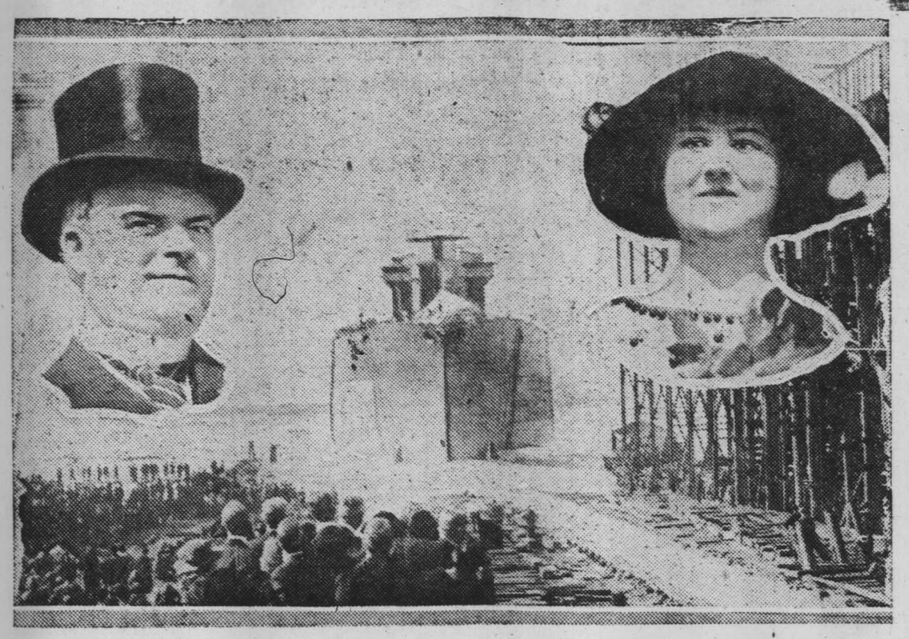
LAUNCHING THE WEST VIRGINIA, WHICH MAY BE SCRAPPED



The superdreadnaught West Virginia, one of the greatest battleships ever designed for the American navy, is shown here sliding down the ways at Newport News. The vessel, fitted to carry eight 16-inch guns, is one of those the United States has agreed to scrap in accordance with the disarmament program. Inserts show Governor Morgan, of West Virginia, who was present at the launching, and Miss Alice Mann, of Bramwell, West Virginia, who named the great ship.

JACKSON & CLARK HOLIDAY STOCK IN

Progressive Store Will Have Many Gift Numbers on Sale This Month

Jackson & Clark, proprietors of one of Glendale's exclusive men's furnishing stores, are preparing for the Christmas trade by displaying a stock of the most seasonable and snappy up-to-the-minute men's wear that it is possible for money and intelligent buying to gather.

There will be combination boxes of ties with socks and handkerchiefs to match, heavy wool sweaters in all of the popular shades, latest patterns in men's shirts, ranging from the humble work shirt to the festive silk and ties of every pattern and description.

One of the big features of the store, however, is their offering of Emerson shoes. In preparation for the Christmas trade a complete run of sizes in all of the popular styles, both black and tan have been secured. There are also hats on display to suit every individual taste.

Holiday suggestions will be made frequently through the window displays of the store and to care for the last minute shopper and the shopper who prefers to buy at home and keep Glendale money in Glendale two extra clerks will be on duty.

Early next week the store will be decorated for the holidays and a lavish display of evergreen boughs will transform the place into a bower of green. To give additional service to the last minute buyers the store will be kept open until 9 p. m. every night during the week preceding Christmas. Both Mr. Jackson and Mr. Clark will be glad to assist shoppers by giving advice and making suggestions regarding the purchase and selection of suitable gifts.

HAVE YOU HAD YOUR CAR SIMONIZED?

F. E. Litzenberg Says Process Is Proving Very Popular Here

F. E. Litzenberg, proprietor of the Glendale Auto Wash rack, located at the corner of Brand and Wilson, is asking the question, "Have you had your car Simonized?" He has been appointed agent for the Simonizing system in Glendale, and already the Simonizing process is proving popular with automobile owners in Glendale. Local motorists who have had their cars Simonized are enthusiastic over the process.

Simonizing is a process that preserves the finish of the car. The varnish on an overcoat is like one suit of clothes which must meet every emergency of hot and cold weather. When a car is Simonized it is first thoroughly cleaned and then covered with a prepared wax. No matter how often the motorist dusts his car he cannot scratch the real gloss, which has been thoroughly covered by Simoniz. Simoniz prevents the car from becoming shabby. It is varnish insurance. If the car when new is Simonized it will retain its "new" appearance indefinitely.

Simonizing reduces the month to month cost of keeping the appearances of the car up-to-the-minute.

BECKERS READY TO GREET SHOPPERS

If one desires an entirely different and new line of Christmas gifts, just drop in at Becker's drug store, 114 North Brand, and look over their candies, stationery, manicure sets, perfumes and toilet waters, fountain pens, Eversharp pencils, etc. They have a wonderful display of these goods and one will find many good suggestions for Christmas. Their store is also being made very attractive by the use of red and green decorations.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL FOR PRESBYTERIANS

Miss Anita Fletcher Will Have Charge of School Work at Church

The officers of the Glendale Presbyterian Church have made a definite start in carrying out an enlarged program of religious education in many departments in the new church building.

Miss Anita Fletcher, who resides with her parents at 332 No. Isabel Street, has been engaged as religious work director, and has already commenced with a class of the junior age, which meets at the church building every Tuesday afternoon, 3:30 to 4:30, and is open without cost to any boy or girl who may desire to attend.

A varied program of music, story telling and Bible tests is proving of interest to the pupils.

Miss Fletcher is a graduate of the Presbyterian Training School of Chicago, and is fully equipped for the work of the "week-day Bible school." Parents are asked to co-operate with the leaders in making the work the success it deserves.

DR. DAVID R. BREED TO BE HERE SUNDAY

Noted Bible Student Will Address Presbyterians in Morning

Dr. David R. Breed, one of the outstanding Bible lecturers of the Presbyterian denomination, whose writings and addresses have been brought before great numbers of people throughout the country, is in Southern California holding conferences in the prominent churches. Dr. Breed will be in Glendale next Sunday morning and make the opening address at the Presbyterian church, corner Broadway and Cedar street. This will be followed by special addresses on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Some of the topics to be discussed are: "The Bible as a Whole," "The Abrahamic Covenant," "The Mosaic Covenant," "The New Covenant," etc. Other churches which will co-operate in this conference are Eagle Rock, Tropico, Burbank, LaCrescenta, Van Nuys, San Fernando, Newhall and Saugus. Those who hear Dr. Breed next Sunday morning will certainly want to hear his other messages. The general public is cordially invited.

MARIE DRESSLER'S LIFE SECRET BARE

Death of James Dalton, Supposed Husband Brings Tragedy to Light

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The secret in the life of Marie Dressler, actress, was laid bare today following the death of James H. Dalton, Boston, known to friends as her husband. Miss Dressler is now on her way to Corning, N. Y., with the body of Dalton, which will be buried in the Dalton family lot.

A representative of Miss Dressler stated today that Dalton was married to Mrs. L. A. Dalton, 60 Brighton avenue, Allstown, a suburb of Boston. Through her confidants, this is the story Miss Dressler told:

"I met Mr. Dalton in 1907 when he was in financial straights. I hired him as my manager. We grew to care for each other and decided to get married. Then he confessed he had a wife in Boston. He went to her and asked her to give him up and get a divorce. She refused. He never went home after that but sent her a monthly allotment."

Dalton died at a hotel shortly after he arrived here to join Miss Dressler.

HATZ'S STORE WELL STOCKED FOR XMAS

Numerous Attarctive Items to Delight Women Shoppers of Glendale

Hatz's, at 132 South Brand, has in a wonderful new line for the Christmas trade, consisting of canteens, bags, vanity cases and overnight cases, dainty organdy aprons, silk underwear, silk kimonos, breakfast caps, Peggy Paige dresses, all special for Christmas.

The bags, canteens and overnight cases are of the newest materials, some with the new drop front and all the fittings that go with a bag of this sort. The organdy aprons are indeed the daintiest ever, coming in all pastel shades and trimmed in pretty ribbons and organdy flowers. The silk underwear is made of glove silk, georgette crepe and crepe de chine, and comes in all dainty colors. One will find in the breakfast caps some entirely different styles and materials, some being trimmed with laces, ribbons, etc. Very special for the Christmas season are the Peggy Paige dresses, suitable for all occasions, and they are specially priced as well. They come in taffetas, canton crepes and all are advanced spring models. Perhaps some of the above may help solve a Christmas shopping problem.

NO WAY TO PREVENT CHEMICAL WARFARE

French Scientist Says Some Chemist May Discover New Weapons

PARIS, Dec. 3.—"The whole question of disarmament has been radically changed and rendered uncertain by the progress in the use of chemicals in warfare." Such is the opinion of Doctor Albert Ranc, an authority on chemicals and a student of the use of chemicals in war.

Dr. Ranc points out that at present there is no known method of determining or limiting the ability of a nation to do harm to its neighbors or enemies by means of chemicals or poison gas. Even though its warships were scrapped and cannons and ammunition destroyed, a nation can have in its laboratories and chemical factories the means of making a terrible war with liquid fire, poison gas and deadly chemicals distributed by airplanes such as are used in ordinary commercial work.

"The Great War has demonstrated the existence of a vast unknown factor of which the power cannot be measured. How can nations conceive disarmament effectively when one of the important factors is unmeasurable? Nobody can now know the limits of the influence of chemistry and aviation on the future warfare."

Dr. Ranc emphasizes the fact that almost any nation, were it so willed, could secretly prepare the means for a chemical war in its laboratories in peace time under the guise of peaceful activities.

As an instance of the speed with which chemical manufacture can be developed, Ranc cites the manufacture of the terrific explosive yperite in France. In March, 1918, the total production in France was about 580 pounds, but seven months later the factories were producing over 1,000,000 pounds.

The French scientist believes it is nearly impossible to effectively guard against any nation developing the means of chemical warfare in peace time.

He declares that the chance discovery of some chemist in an obscure University might possibly modify the whole art of war-making.

Sole Fasteners and Rough Rounders' Union affiliated with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, has thrown down the gauntlet to the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association and also to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union by refusing to sign an application for arbitration with the manufacturers in their request for a 20 per cent reduction in wages.

HEIR TO FORTUNE IS STILL WORKING AT SAME OLD STAND

Young Engineer With $200,000 Sticks to His Old Desk

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A young man is working away today behind a desk stacked high with papers in a lower Broadway office building; working away as though on the effort of every instant depended his job and livelihood. He doesn't act like a young gentleman of independent means.

But he is. He doesn't need a job. On the contrary, he is the principal heir to a fortune of $200,000 discovered in an old trunk belonging to a deceased aunt.

The young man in question is Robert Hendry, an engineer employed by a firm of South American contractors. The fortune into which he came so unexpectedly was discovered in a trunk belonging to his aunt, Mrs. Jemima Sinclair Simms, when her effects were opened at her apartment in the Empire Hotel a few days ago.

That wasn't all, though. In another trunk, buried deep under old clothing, were found stock in the American Express Company and oil concerns, with a total value of about $700,000. Which would lead to the belief that young Mr. Hendry really doesen't have to work if he doesn't feel inclined to.

Hendry is a modest, unassuming chap, however, who doesn't feel that the sudden acquisition of wealth justifies him in donning peacock feathers. He is sticking to his old job.

When interviewed in his office, Hendry was inclined to minimize the amount of his newly-gotten wealth.

Only a Small Sum

"Oh, it was only a few thousand dollars," he said, with a wave of his hand.

When presented for furthern information as to the amount he admitted that it was well over $125,000, in fact near $200,000. But he steadfastly refused to admit the discovery of the bonds.

It was learned from an authoritative source, however, that some $675,000 in bonds were found in another trunk belonging to Mrs. Simms.

"Really it doesn't amount to much," said Hendry, in discussing the find. "It is true that the discovery was made and I can assure you that everything will be handled in a most proper manner."

Mrs. Simms, who died in September, was the widow of Dr. Joseph Simms, well-known lecturer and writer, who attained popularity as a lecturer in the seventies. Dr. Simms died in the Spring of 1920, and his body, in accordance with his deathbed wish, was turned over to scientists for research purposes.

The couple had resided at the Empire Hotel for fifteen years. They were known among the other guests as ultra-conservative, living retired lives, mingling little with the other guests, and taking no part in social activities.

Unless washed off promptly with soap and water, road tar will quickly harden on a car, leaving unsightly streaks and spots. There are several good ways of removing it, however. One consists of an application of butter or oleomargarine which will soften the tar without injury to the varnish. Another good solvent is cocoa butter, which is used in the theatrical profession for removing grease paint. This is a harmless solvent for all kinds of oil and greases as well as tar.

Approved by the legislature of the Mexican state of Vera Cruz, a law provides that all industries must share their profits with the workers and is retroactive to February, 1917. The share of the profits going to the workers will be distributed in proportion to their salaries and to their length of service.

AUTO TRADES MEET IN BAKERSFIELD DECEMBER 5TH

Delegates From All Over the State to Attend Meet in Kern Capital

Delegates from all parts of California are assembling for the general meeting of the California Automobile Trade association, which will be held in Bakersfield December 5th and 6th. This meeting will be one of the largest ever held by the automobile men and one of the best. President George Haberfelde, head of the association, aided by Robert W. Martland, secretary-manager, is preparing a series of meetings that will differ radically from anything ever held before by the state association.

Experts in various crafts of the automotive industry will address the various crafts of the association and the second day will be given over to the general assembly of all delegates. L. H. Bennett, "business doctor," who is doing good work in educating the automobile men of the state in proper business methods, will be there to tell what he has done in the last few months and he has done a great deal.

Many conditions have had to be met in the automotive industry in the last few months and ways and means of solving the problems which are confronting the industry in California will be discussed by the delegates. The California Automobile Trade association is divided into crafts, with a state chairman of each. For instance, the battery men meet together, the motor car dealers, too, and every branch of the trade is similarly divided. These crafts hold their meetings the first day of the convention and report to the general meetings the second day.

Ray W. Sherman, New York, editor of Motor World, address and moving pictures.

J. F. Thompson, general manager of Willys Overland Pacific Co., "Business and Financial Conditions East."

Carl E. Rosenberg, sales promoter, a high-power man, "What to Do When the Customer says 'No.'"

H. A. Nater, San Francisco, assistant vice president of Bank of Italy, "Miracles of Management."

H. J. Banta, manager of Weinstock-Nichols Co., "The Employer's Greatest Responsibility."

J. O. Davis, San Francisco, president of California Tax Reduction League, "Waste in Government Cost."

D. M. Robinson, director of research, First National bank of Los Angeles, "Guard Your Highways."

Daniel H. Jones, Los Angeles, whom you will remember, "Our Greatest Need."

L. H. Bennett, recently of Pittsburgh, "The Retailer and the Jobber."

Ivan Kelso, assistant counsel Auto Club of Southern California, "The Garage Man and His Legal Rights."

Robert W. Martland, secretary-manager of the California Automobile Trade association, "Our Association."

There is much to be done at the Bakersfield convention, and the delegates will go there with many problems to solve.

Some fifteen members of the local San Gabriel Valley Automobile Trade association plan to make the trip north and will bring back with them the many new ideas developed there.

It's Going to Rain

Automatically this assertion causes the motorist to mentally declare:

"And I haven't had that top recovered yet." It isn't the most enjoyable thing in the world to have a shower come up and a little later to feel the water, which filters through the old worn-out top, trickle in a steady stream down the back of your neck.

As you continue homeward the rain comes down in sheets, as they say, and before you know it the new suit or dress is a wreck. You will mentally vow never to overlook such an important thing as the top covering again.

BUT THAT VOW WILL NOT PAY FOR THE RUINED SUIT.

We make and repair tops of all kinds including the California top, which is proving so immensely popular.

WALKERS JEWELRY CUT GLASS DISPLAY

Special Holiday Offerings Are Most Interesting to Shoppers

One of the finest displays of cut-glass and jewelry will be found at Walker's jewelry store, 116 East Broadway, which will help you with your Christmas shopping. There are water sets, consommes, fruit dishes, all sorts of wrist watches, silver, both for table service and tea table, pearl necklaces, beautiful rings, nut bowls, vanity cases in both leather and metal, and the ever-popular fancy shell combs, some set with rhinestones and others with colored brilliants.

They are offering at the holiday season a special wrist watch of Swiss make for $14. This watch is thoroughly guaranteed and is a good timepiece. Mr. Walker has also opened a store at Burbank in order that he may serve his many patrons there. V. B. Redmond of Glendale is in charge there and carries the same character of goods as is found in the Glendale store.

Mr. Walker has a wonderful chime clock over 55 years old. This clock is worth about $3,000 but will be sold for $1,000, and is good for at least another 250 years.

CHRISTMAS BOOKS OF EVERY VARIETY

DISCOVER REALLY TRULY JOHNNY BULL

Sir Aukland Geddes Is Considered Real Type of British Over Here

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—If there is any man in Washington today who typifies Great Britain, that man is Sir Auckland Geddes. Perhaps Admiral Beatty, to outward appearances, is more typical of the "beefy" type of John Bullism, but in mannerisms, speech, thought and deed Sir Auckland is "it."

I talked with him the other day in the big drawing room of the British Embassy. It is one of those imposing rooms which belong to the last century, high ceilinged and with an Adams atmosphere about it suggestive of Louis Seize fans and the black face patches which the great ladies of that time effected. On the heavy doors, glass panels bear the royal arms of Great Britain. You push them open and a tall figure welcomes you with a handshake like a prize-fighter's, and a smile like a genial country squire.

Once you get Sir Auckland on an interesting subject the big fellow stretches his legs out and leans back on the sofa. He has a habit of sticking his thumbs into the arm holes of his waistcoat and soliloquizing as he does so. He has an amazing reserve force. You wonder what this man would be like were he aroused. And, wondering, you search your brain for a calamity or a matter of sufficient importance really to excite him.

During the war he was the calmest man in the British Cabinet. He is one of the calmest men in the Washington Conference today. His one thought at present is to see Great Britain and America "pulling together."

"I want to see these two great nations combined together in a lasting endeavor to secure the peace of the world," said Geddes.

From what I know of him he means every word of it.

GORDON'S HOLIDAY STOCK ALREADY IN

Another good suggestion to aid in Christmas shopping would be to look at the beautiful silk negligees and undergarments to be found at Gordon's, 119 North Brand. They come in all pastel shades and seem so luxurious, though not at all expensive. They also have in a special line of hosiery for ladies, men and children in silk, wool and cotton. Especially for the holiday season they have put in a full line of infant's knit wear, sweaters, caps and tiny knit bootees and hose. Other specil lines are handkerchiefs, dolls, blouses, boudoir caps and neckwear.

Production of cotton cloth costs approximately 39 per cent more in Belgium today than it does in Germany. Although the costs of raw materials are comparatively the same for both countries, the Belgian wage for the same type of work is 90 per cent higher than in Germany.

Marriage of Children India's Greatest Evil Says Student

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Marriage vows at ten years of age. Little lisping girls and bashful boys exchange words that bind them together in a state of matrimony which they cannot understand.

Ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen—these are the years of brides in India whose parents still subscribe to the old idea of child marriage.

This is one of the greatest evils existing in India today. Yet it had its origin in a desire only to protect women. The observer is led to believe from reports that such an institution must have had its beginnings in those dark days when men sought to shut away women from the world and place them in a safe if dubious position.

But one of the younger generation of old India, who holds to many ancient ideals though he is most progressive, explains the strange custom.

Jal Curestji Pavry, son of a high priest of the Parsees, now a student at Columbia, discusses this problem of his country and declares it one of the greatest evils that burden India today.

Student Tells of Conditions

"Women were held in great esteem by the followers of Zocoaster, the Parsees of old. These people, from whom the modern Parsees are descended, flourished in Persia in the seventh century.

"The invasion of the Mohammedans caused a number of converts and, weakening the strength of our prophet's followers, made the position of our women a dangerous one.

"Parents shielded their daughters in their homes. The liberties and position of woman immediately changed.

"But parents who got tired of this responsibility found a way to shift it.

"Marrying off very young girls became another measure of safeguard. Persecution of the Parsees continued by the greater number of Mohammedans and when those first Pilgrims of Persia went into India they continued to protect their women.

"The child marriage was a concomitant evil of the invasion of Persia and the bitter persecution that followed.

"It is one of India's greatest social evils today.

"It should be wiped out and we should marry now as they do in your West, from a standpoint of suitability, mutual liking, and at a more mature age."

Young Mr. Pavry has chosen Columbia University as a place to prepare for his future problems. Only twenty-one, he got his "A. B." at Bombay University, but left India to take his Master's and Doctor's degrees in America. He, too, patterning after his father, will become a High Priest of the Parsees, who are followers of the Prophet Zoroaster.

Other Troubles of India's People

"But beside this social evil there are other drawbacks to the people of India today," Mr. Pavry said. "There is the British Government's lack of interest in our educational problem.

"Only 6 per cent of our people are educated. This constitutes one of India's great grievances against England.

"Upon us is put the stigma of being an agricultural nation. In ancient India there were great schools and universities. One hundred years ago, after the industrial revolution, Europe progressed to a great extent commercially. India, on the other hand, failed to double her industries. She was not encouraged under British rule to do so.

"There was little or no machinery in Europe at that time; they got the richest and finest quality of goods from my country, which always had had her own arts and architecture.

"India was the warehouse of the East.

"At the present time there are some mills in Bombay. There are gold, silver and iron mines. And if India were to go ahead, unhampered, she could develop enormous resources. During the war one of our iron works, the Tata Company, helped considerably by sending rails into Mesopotamia and Egypt.

"The boycott on English goods is no joke. It is a serious situation."

Denies Women Are Against Boycott

Regarding the boycott against British goods in India, and the rumor that women are upsetting the boycott by refusing to wear native products, Mr. Pavry emphatically denied its possibility.

"Women of India stand by their men," he declared. "They never would betray the aims and plans of their partners. Our problems are vital right now. But I believe in social, not political, uplift in India. I would like to see established schools where our own vernaculars could be used and retained. All these tongues have their roots in Sanscrit, though Hindustani is the common language.

"The idea that these thirty native vernaculars keep the people apart is wrong. All are able to speak this one common language.

"But castes do keep people alienated from each other. And the Hindus have so many castes. The Parsees and the Hohammedans have none. The Brahmin caste among the Hindus holds sway over many depressed peoples and they constitute a great menace to Indian political institutions. They have no sympathy for their own people and do not regard them as equals, hence they cannot do much real good.

"I want to break down caste.

"Up until lately the Hindus and the Mohammedans were united, but after political troubles and the massacres at Amritsar, they have been thrown apart.

"The Parsees should be organized—there are so many existing abuses of the priesthood there. I want to study system and organization in America—you people are masters of it."

FRENCH OFFICER SOLD WAR PLANS?

PARIS, Dec. 3.—Charged with selling the general mobilization plans of the French armies to German spies before the war, Captain Leon Proust of the French Army of the Near-East has just been arrested under extraordinary circumstances more than seven years after the alleged treason. He is held in solitary confinement in the citadel of the fortress of Besancon.

The arrest caused a sensation throughout France. The War Department is maintaining silence regarding the details of the charge. Proust was arrested while at home on leave from Syria. Throughout the war Proust served with his regiment, and since has been on duty in Morocco and in the Near-East.

The unprecedented act of treason is reported to have been first uncovered immediately after the armistice. Among the papers found in a Belgian town after the Germans' hasty evacuation, were documents belonging to a high intelligence officer of the German army. They related to the ramifications of the German spy system before the war. The documents implicated Proust, it is said, in the sale of the mobilization plans. Through their purchase the Germans were aware of the complete details of France's mobilization plans two months before the outbreak of the war.

Throughout the three years since the armistice, the French secret service has been carefully investigating and at last pounced upon Proust.

When you smash or jam a hub cap, do not let it stay in a defective condition, as it will allow grit to enter and wear the bearings, while permitting the grease to ooze out. A repair hub can be made in a very few minutes by the use of an old tin can of proper size to fit the axle. Cut the can off two or three inches from the bottom and slit it down for an inch or so. Put the can over the hub and bind it with wire to hold it tightly in place.

'DEAD' MAN CALLED TO LIFE BY WIFE

Dr. Poling, United Christian Endeavor, Tells of Miracle After Accident

WILMINGTON, N. C., Dec. 3.—The story of how Mrs. Daniel A. Poling, wife of the associate president of the United Christian Endeavor Societies of the World, knelt for more than a quarter of an hour at the side of her husband, who had been given up for dead in a motor accident near here, and by mental suggestion and repeated calling of his name brought him back to life, is told by Rev. Dr. Poling to the Christian Endeavor World.

Dr. Poling, who attributes his recovery to a miracle, suffered a broken back in the accident, yet is walking around today, seemingly as well as ever, except that he sometimes uses the support of a cane.

Faith in her ability to restore her husband to life was so great that Mrs. Poling refused to leave his side even when told that he was dead. Not for an instant did she relax her efforts to call him back, though bystanders tried to draw her off, unable to bear what seemed the tragic futility of her attempt. She was finally rewarded by a flicker of the "dead man's" eyelids, and from that time on Dr. Poling continued to get well.

The accident was caused by a broken steering wheel which snapped while the car was going at a speed of less than twenty-five miles an hour. The car swerved and dashed into a telegraph pole at the side of the road. Dr. Poling, who was driving, was crushed in the wreckage and only the almost superhuman efforts of Mrs. Poling, who bent the steering wheel aside, saved him from instant death.

Dr. Poling is well known, having been here some years in a crusade against whisky. At that time he was working with ex-Governor Stanley, who was later killed in an automobile accident.

Massachusetts' Public Employment Office reports that orders from employers in July were 22 per cent less than in June and 31 per cent less than July, 1920. Demand for mercantile and clerical workers has been very small and easily filled. Office boys are a drug on the market, there being 20 boys for every position.

PUSS 'N BOOTS IS WELL STOCKED UP

Gift Boxes of Fruit and Candy Prominent Item For Holiday

Christmas is not complete without a quantity of candy. It seems to be as much a part of the holiday atmosphere as the pine boughs and holly wreaths that are used in decorating. Henry Clinton, proprietor of Puss 'n Boots, is preparing for the holiday rush well in advance. He has already prepared a large stock of hard candy and candy ribbons and is busy every day making fresh chocolates.

One of the Christmas suggestions of Mr. Clinton's is the gift box of candied fruits. These crystallized fruits are packed in baskets which, after they are emptied, make beautiful sewing baskets. The candy also comes in decorated boxes. These boxes are all packed and ready for shipping to the folks back East.

The store will be appropriately decorated in evergreens and ribbon and preparations have been made for an extra corps of helpers, to be called for when needed.

PAINT-PAPER CO. MAKING CHANGES

The Glendale Paint & Paper company, 119 South Brand, of which William Hunter is proprietor, is undergoing a renovation and re-decoration period. The company is getting ready for the Christmas season and has added a great many things to the stock, such as all artists' supplies, oil colors, pastel paints, etc., picture frames, prints, candles and candlesticks, and all sorts of art goods. The store is being re-decorated and new show cases are being added, so that they will be ready to serve the public to the best advantage in the near future.

By fastening a narrow apron to the front bow of the top so that it will hang down below the edge of the windshield, the draft which strikes the back of your neck can be kept out and probably save many a doctor bill for the driver who does not take this precaution to keep out the air.

Are You Going to Preserve the Varnish On Your Auto?

Your car represents a considerable investment that rain, sun and dust is constantly deteriorating. You can dust off the varnish after every trip, wax, wash or oil polish every inch of it—still it wears off.

Prevent its early deterioration by giving it an overcoat of Simoniz. You can then dust off your car whenever necessary. Why? Because when you dust a Simonized surface you dust the Simoniz and not the varnish.

Simoniz prevents a shabby appearance. Simoniz is VARNISH INSURANCE. Its application to your car while new and unimpaired means a future minimum expense in maintaining its new appearance.

Have your car greased while it is being Simonized. Our charges are reasonable. We dress your top without extra cost.

All work guaranteed satisfactory or no pay.

Cars washed .....$1.50 and up
Cars Simonized .....$10 to $12

Ours is the only Simoniz-service station in Glendale. We call for and deliver.

TEASING DOGS WITH 'STORAGE' RABBIT

Exide Battery Is Power Behind Bunny Being Chased By Hounds

Here's something good. This is actually the limit when it comes to putting storage batteries to new uses," said H. M. Parker of the Autolectric Service Company, 113 West Harvard, this morning. "At the dog races now being held in East St. Louis, greyhounds are staging very spectacular races each day in pursuit of a rabbit which apparently bounds around the track at very high speed, but which is really run by a concealed electric motor and an Exide battery.

"On account of the very high speed at which this 'rabbit' performs," says Mr. Parker, "the service on the battery is very severe, and it has been found that a battery designed especially for truck work is required to fill the bill. This battery is of very rugged construction and is known as 'the battery that can stand a million bumps.'

"New uses are being found daily for the storage battery, but this is one of the most novel we have ever heard of."

REHEARSE SPECIAL CHRISTMAS MUSIC

The choir of the Presbyterian church is planning some special music for Christmas time under the able direction of Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts. A cantata will be rendered by the quartet, which consists of Mrs. Helen Graham Cole, soprano; Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, contralto; Everett Anderson, tenor, and C. Clifford Riggs, baritone. Miss Carolyn Bailey is the organist. They hope to have with them Miss Margery Bailey, the harpist. The cantata, entitled "The Christmas King," by Fred Holton, will be given Christmas Sunday night. The young people of the church are planning to sing Christmas carols early Christmas morning, and will also visit the hospitals.

Slight bumps often cause disastrous results and should be avoided at all times. A slight bump against the curb is likely to result in a bent rear axle shaft, which in turn will cause excessive wear of the inner face of the right end roller bearing, which in time means that the entire bearing must be replaced.

It has long been customary to clean gasoline engine cylinders with long-handled scraping tools, the cutting edges of which are hardened. In scraping a cylinder in this manner, it is important to have the piston in the uppermost position of its sweep, since otherwise the scrapping is likely to slip into the bore of the cylinder and injure the smooth surface of the cylinder wall.

Ford Owners LISTEN!

Has your automobile mechanic been overcharging you? Has the work he has been doing been of an inferior character? Are you for any reason dissatisfied with the treatment you have been receiving by the fellow who has been "keeping up" your car?

If you have, here's an earful—

I'm a Ford Doctor and I claim to be a good one. I can keep your car in good working order and I can do it without breaking your bank account.

There are two ways of doing every job—the short way and the long way. I endeavor always to take the "short cut," thereby saving you money. In this way I keep my customers. This is the reason my business is growing daily. I do all my own work—no apprentices in my shop.

Give me a trial—I can be a real friend to you—a dollar saving friend. I will call for your car and deliver it free of charge.
I use genuine Ford parts only.

THE EVENING STORY

ADVENT OF THE UNEXPECTED

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

Sarah Wilcox had been working since 6 o'clock that morning, scarcely pausing for a bite of bread and a cup of tea, and now at 3 she was "that tired her very soul ached," as she expressed it to herself. But she had finished her task. The whole house was in perfect order and no one's hands but her had touched it.

Of course, there never was much dirt in her house. She had scrupulous ideals of neatness. You could tell that by her own appearance. Even after hours of dusting and moving things about, her white apron and blouse were as snowy as when she had donned them, and her gray hair, a fitting frame for her gentle face, was as smooth as though it had just been coiled.

Sadly and tenderly her eyes roved over the friendly vista before her. She could see through the dining room into the kitchen and the other way into the parlor and hall. The faded old values of wood and fabric were restful and attractive. Sarah loved every nook and corner of her house and every stick of furniture with a love that had in it a good deal of memory and veneration. She had lived in the house all her life and, until a few weeks before, had expected to go on living in it until the end.

But the war, which had turned the world topsy-turvy, had lost for Sarah the one investment which yielded her an income. She had nothing except her house, and that she could neither sell or rent. For the small town was going backward; more and more houses stood empty and unsalable.

Much as she loved her home, Sarah would have parted with it rather than be a dependent upon her niece, Elva Babcock, who had grudgingly offered her a home. It crushed her heart to be forced to live where she was not wanted because she was old and had no money with which to do for herself.

The thought of Elva brought tears to her eyes. She was sure to have a hard time with the sharp-tongued, sharp-eyed woman who spent her nights playing bridge and her days gossiping over the phone with her neighbors. But there appeared to be no other way for her.

She found herself asking this question aloud of the India ink portrait over the old vases. It was the portrait of a young girl with golden curls dangling over apple-blossomy shoulders. Sarah could remember the time when Sally Bland had looked like that. She had been a perfect beauty. In fact, the picture had been made by an artist who had fallen in love with her one youthful, joyous summer. He had made two pictures—one for Sally and one for Sarah. Sarah's had been a propitiatory offering, for she had not approved of the artist and would not have one done of herself. She could see now that she had been jealous, not because he preferred Sally to her, but because she could not bear that any one should step between her and the friend she adored. However, Sally's love for him had been only a passing idyl. She had married a stout business man with plenty of money. The last time Sarah saw her she had been wrapped in velvet and sable and looked complacent and well fed. That was years ago. Since then only casual letters or Christmas cards had passed between them.

"Well," Sarah said, still addressing the portrait, "I suppose I must go and slick up a bit and get ready for the train. And I ought to have a bit of something to eat. I shan't get to Elva's till long after her supper hour and I don't want to put her out any. I've some tea and a half loaf left." She laughed grimly. "Coming out pretty close. I don't know when I even sat down to three meals of bread and tea before. However it won't hurt; I've considerable meat on my bones."

She put her hand to her head. The portrait had begun suddenly to dance and swing; the whole room went round.

"I'm whirly," Sarah thought. "My land, what makes it? Can't be my stomach. I haven't eaten enough in two days to—. I guess I better lie down." She groped her way to the couch and half fell upon it. And there she lay unable to move for more than two hours.

The train which was to have borne her away came and went.

"I'm as helpless as a lamb with its legs tied," she thought. "Nothing like this ever happened to me before. If I could get to the window I might be able to summon some passer-by. That's the only thing I could do. I'm out here alone by myself except for Addie Peters, and she's away. Well, if this doesn't beat all! What will Elva think when she goes to the train and don't find me? She'll make a stir likely. I wish I had something to draw over me. I expect the fire's out in the stove by this time, and it's growing cold. Saran Wilcox, this is the queerest thing that ever happened to you."

She shut her eyes and shivered a little. "Ir I had the thick comforter off my bed upstairs I wouldn't mind so much," she said to herself.

At that instant she heard a sound. The front door had opened. Maybe Addie Peters had got home. She would ask Addie to get the comforter and perhaps brew her a cup of tea, then she would be all right.

She could not turn her head to see who was coming down the hall. She heard the person stop at the door, and now a bit of alarm seized her. Suppose it shouldn't be Addie after all, but some stranger? "Who is it," she asked.

There was no answer save a few quick steps. And now the intruder was close to her. She twisted her eyes and they fell upon a stout woman puffing under her weight of furs and a most elaborate bonnet.

"Why, Sarah Wilcox! What in the world ails you?" exclaimed the stout woman.

Thinking about it afterward, Sarah knew that she must have fainted. But the unconscious spell only lasted a minute. When she came to the air seemed to be full of ammonia and lavender and her lips tasted sour.

"I never travel without my smelling salts and spirits of ammonia," said the stout woman. She slipped off her fur coat and covered Sarah from toe to chin. "Stick your hands in my muff," she commanded, "while I get a fire built. What's to make it with?"

"There's some wood in the kitchen box," answered Sarah, trying to feel invigorated and cozy. "Oh, Sally Bland, I was just talking to your picture there."

But Sally Bland did not hear. She was slipping the wood and an old newspaper into the stove. For such a stout person she had wonderfully agile motions. Soon the fire roared and the temperature of the room began to rise. Sally closed the doors and came back to Sarah's side. "How are you feeling?" she asked. "Do you think you need a doctor? Haven't you got a telephone? How do you live without a telephone?"

"There's one on the corner at the drug store," Sarah answered.

"I'm going over there. Can you stand it to be left alone for a few minutes?"

"I can stand anything now," replied Sarah. "Here, take your coat. I'm real warm."

What followed seemed like the best dream ever dreamed. Sally Bland seemed to have done a thousand things with that telephone. Soon wood began to arrive and baskets of provision. Lights were lit, the house grew cozy, and there was a smell of coffee.

"I'll help you to the table," said Sally. "I'm as hungry as little Tom Tucker. Travelling is hungry work. By the way, Sarah, you may as well know, I've shut up my house and come to stay with you this winter—if you'll have me."

It was not like Sarah to break down and cry.

An hour later a message went to Elva Babcock. Sally paid another visit to the corner drug store and sent it herself.

'BITS OF LIFE' WILL BE SUNDAY'S BILL

Great Cast in Story That Has Had a Great Run Over the Nation

An exceptional cast will be seen in Marshall Neilan's latest cinema production, "Bits of Life," which begins an engagement of two days at the T. D. and L. Theater on Sunday.

Among the screen favorites who play prominent roles are freckle-faced Wesley Barry, Lon Chaney, the remarkable character actor; Noah Beery, John Bowers, Harriett Hammond, Teddy Sampson, Anna May Wong.

And still others, who rank as stellar lights of New York's theatrical and motion picture world, are Fred Burton, Rockcliffe Fellowes and James Bradbury, Jr.

Part of the production was filmed in New York and part in California, Mr. Neilan being thus able to pick the best talent available in both East and West.

The production of "Bits of Life" is unique in that it presents the combined efforts of four famous writers.

The stories which form the basis for photoplay are Thomas McMorrow's "The Bad Samaritan," published by the Popular Magazine; Walter Trumbull's "The Man Who Heard Everything," a Smart Set story; Hugh Wiley's "Hop," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and Marshall Neilan's original story, "The Strange Adventure."

Satire, comedy-drama, melodrama and farce figure in the photoplay, with one theme running through each. The production was personally directed by Marshall Neilan and is said to represent the most ambitious as well as novel effort that he has yet made.

SAW WOMAN IN TWO AT T. D. & L. THEATER

Sawing a woman in two sounds impossible. It is, but they are doing it on the stage of the T. D. and L. Theater. It is an illusion, of course, but at the presentation last night those who witnessed it had the thrill of their lives. So likewise will those who will see it tonight when it will be performed for the last time. It is a novelty in every sense of the word and nothing of its kind has been seen here before.

The ape, Napoleon, well known of in movies and as an Orpheum vaudeville act, contributed to the bill with his almost human sense and brought out a great series of laughter with his many pranks and "bits of acting." The whole show is a remarkably good one and was enjoyed by large audiences last night. The feature picture, "Not Guilty," taken from the Harold McGrath novel and stage play "Parrot & Company," is perhaps one of the best pictures seen here in a long time.

An automobile engine needs almost as much care as a person would in respect to being kept clean, and every owner should see to it that his engine is given an occasional kerosene bath. First spray kerosene all over the engine and then wipe off all the dirt. This goes for the crankcase, as well as the parts that you can see when the hood is lifted. If cleaned occasionally, the engine will last much longer and work much better.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

It was raining cats and a few dogs when Judge Henry Martin dropped into the office to waste an afternoon for me the other day. We told each other how much better and finer people used to be when we were young than they are now, and, specifically how much better and finer we personally were than the rest of our generation. Then I began to wonder if the Judge had, seen that "Don't Park Here" sign on my desk. So I said:

"What are you doing downtown today Judge?"

"Down to take my daughter Mary home from school," said he. "I'm getting her educated."

Mary Martin has had a fair whack at most of the current education. She is a college graduate and has a degree or two extra and can discuss things of which I do not even know the name, and is a good looker into the bargain. I couldn't figure out why the Judge wanted more education for her. She is to be married in a few months.

"That's just the reason," said Judge Martin. "I've heard a good many divorce suits in my time, and whenever I got the chance I used to talk causes with the contending parties. I made one discovery. Lots of husbands think they have their wives sewed in a sack because the poor women couldn't support themselves at any other job than marriage. Many a girl has said to me:

"'I would have asked for a divorce long ago if I had dared. But I did not know how to earn a living.'"

The Judge says that Mary and her husband-to-be are both fine, sensible, common-sense young people. He isn't worried about Mary's future. But it occurred to him that if anything should happen to this matrimonial bark, and to the small estate the Judge will leave behind him, that Mary is wholly unfit to make a living for herself. The things she knows are interesting and valuable, but not readily salable.

"I'm not going to let my girl get married until she is not only fit to hold a job, but to get a better job as soon as her employer finds out about her," said the Judge. "When she can take dictation as fast as I can talk and write the stuff accurately on the typewriter, then she can marry—and not until then. I believe in insurance."

The Over Size Element

Strength, in a storage battery, depends upon the positive plate area. The greater this area, the greater the power and "kick." And as the area is increased, the strain on each unit is reduced. Westinghouse Batteries are built with two more plates per cell than ordinary types. In common sizes this increased plate area increases the battery's capacity 15—25 per cent; gives it that much longer life. By that amount the strain on each individual plate is lessened.

The Westinghouse is an extra strong battery.

DO IT NOW!

Build that house now; construct that highway at once; build that school, that church, repair that broken pavement; build that garage, and even that chicken coop, now—not tomorrow.

Go ahead with your plans; speed the nation on the road to full employment and thus hasten the day of individual and national prosperity and safety.

Preach this everywhere; put it into effect, and remember, business men of Glendale, men of "big business" and men of "little business," that there is something in this infinitely higher and more important than the small amount of money involved which you think you could save by waiting.

Some men put off the day of salvation, expecting to attend to it on their death bed, but not many ever succeed in doing it at that hour. "Do it now, and do it with all your might," should be the motto of every man in Glendale who expects to do any construction work in the near future. "Do it now," and thus do your part toward individual and national business salvation—and even more.

Procrastination is more than the thief of time; it is the murderer of opportunity.

Glendale Real Estate

is coming into its own. It's up to you to co-operate in carrying out the above wise and timely admonition by ACTING NOW.

Improve your vacant lots and boost everything to make Glendale a Bigger and Better place in which to live.

GLENDALE PRESBYTERIAN
"Church of the Lighted Cross," corner Broadway and Cedar. W. E. Edmonds, Pastor. Louis Tinning, Assistant Pastor.

Dr. David R. Breed, of Pittsburgh, will occupy the pulpit at the morning hour of worship, 11 o'clock, opening a four days' Bible Conference in this church. His subject on the Sabbath will be "The Bible as a Whole," followed by "The Abrahamic Covenant," "The Mosaic and Davidic Covenants" and "The New Covenant," on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings respectively, 7:30. The public is cordially invited to hear all of these addresses. Evening service at 7:30 preceded by the usual 15-minute organ recital. The pastor will begin a series of talks on "The Lure of a Soul," based on Sidney Watson's great book of that title. Everybody welcome. Sabbath school for all classes at 9:30 a. m., H. L. Finlay, superintendent. Men's Bible class meets in the city hall at the same hour, under the leadership of Keith Brooks, of the Bible Institute. Christian Endeavor meetings at 3, 6 and 6:15, open to all who are interested.

At the Presbyterian Sunday school tomorrow morning Prof. David R. Boyd will give a brief address on "Education" in recognition of "Education Week." Dr. Boyd was for 16 years president of the University of Oklahoma and also for four years president of the University of New Mexico. Dr. Boyd has come to Glendale to reside and has secured a home in the 300 block on North Kenwood.

The musical program for Sunday, under the direction of Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, with Miss Carolyn G. Bailey at the organ, will be as follows:

Morning—Prelude, "Largo" (Handel); anthem by the quartet, "Unto Thee" (Adams), Mrs. Helen Graham Cole, soporano; Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, contralto; Everett Anderson, tenor; C. Clifford Riggs, baritone; offertory, baritone solo, "Resignation" (Cara-Roma), C. Clifford Riggs; postlude, "Victory March" (Kern).

Evening—Organ recital: (a) "Chorus of Angels" (Clark); (b) "Pilgrim Chorus" (Wagner); (c) "Remembrance" (Groton); quartet, "I Love Thy Kingdom" (Hine); soprano and tenor duet, "Just As I Am" (Parks), Mrs. Cole and Mr. Anderson; offertory, "Interlude" (Chopin); quartet, "Be Joyful in the Lord" (Lorenz); gospel solo by Mrs. Retts; postlude, "Hymn" (Lvoff).

NEW ORGANIST FOR T. D. & L. THEATER

George Olsene, new organist engaged by the management of the T. D. and L. Theater, will arrive and take over the console of the master organ at that theater tomorrow, Sunday. Mr. Olsene is considered one of the best motion picture organists in the west, and comes here direct from the Victory Theater, Tacoma Wash., one of the largest and most beautiful picture palaces on the Pacific Coast. As an artist, Mr. Olsene is exceptional, and will be found capable of rendering both classical and popular music with rare ability. For his first concert or solo number, Mr. Olsene has selected to play the intermesso from Cavilleri Rusticanna, which he will use during both days of the showing of "Bits of Life," the Marshall Neilan production which opens at that theater tomorrow. He will also prepare an especially attractive musical score for presentation with the Nazimova special production of "Camille" for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Henri Monnett, former organist at the T. D. and L., was transferred to the DeLuxe Theater, Los Angeles, another theater operated by the T. D. and L. circuit, where he will be the feature player.

Mrs. Hagood, relief organist at the T. D. and L., has handled with very rare skill the master organ during the past week, awaiting the arrival of Mr. Olsene.
